

Great Fleet Off Portsmouth To-day Reviewed By King

Display of Britain's Naval Defence Forces Seen By Quarter of Million People Lining Shore

Schooner Bluenose At End of the Line

Portsmouth, Eng., July 16.—The empire's sailor King reviewed the fleet to-day.

Standing on the bridge of the royal yacht Victoria and Albert as she slowly steamed from Portsmouth Harbor, the King saw five-mile-long lines of grim grey masted battleships and battle-cruisers, aircraft carriers and destroyers, and submarines, and the sunlit waters.

Beyond were great merchantmen and on the extreme right of the line marking the turning point for the royal yacht lay the rakish Lauenburg schooner Bluenose, champion of the North Atlantic fleets, over here on an exhibition tour.

SHORE CROWD 250,000

On shore, as the royal yacht moved away, packed masses of people wildly cheered and cheered again their greetings. All day thousands and more thousands arrived to swell the crowds that had spent their night in the open. It was estimated 250,000 persons lined the shore between Southsea and Le-on-Solent, off which stretched the combined might of the Home and Mediterranean fleets.

KING IN COMMAND

The flag hoist was run up on the royal yacht. As she left the jetty the officer of the watch turned to the King and asked permission to carry on. Then the flag hoist was lowered, a signal the King was in supreme command of his fleet at sea.

The royal yacht moved slowly forward.

KING'S SONS THERE

A canvas awning protected the King and his sons from the sun's glare. On the deck below stood the King's three naval sons—the Prince of Wales, the Duke of York and the Duke of Kent. The Duke of Gloucester, an army man, watched from the deck of the Australian cruiser Australia. The latter and H.M.S. Indus of the Royal Indian Navy had brought to the review the tribute of the empire overseas.

SALUTE FIRED

The Victoria and Albert approached the fleet and a wireless order flashed. Immediately the capital ships, the aircraft carriers, the cruisers, and the Australia and Indus thundered the royal salute of twenty-one guns with terrific roar.

WILL BE VISITOR HERE TO-MORROW

While Premier J. A. Fisher of Australia, above, is in Victoria to-morrow during the brief stay of the liner Niagara, outboard for his homeland, he will be given a glimpse of the city. Premier Pattullo plans to take the distinguished visitor for a motor ride.

JUDGES QUIT RIOT INQUIRY

After Messages From Ottawa Three Resign From Regina Investigation

Canadian Press
Regina, July 16.—Resignation of three judges from the Royal Commission appointed by the Saskatchewan Government to investigate the riot here Dominion Day was announced to-day by Hon. T. C. Davis, Attorney-General of Saskatchewan. The commission was to have started sitting August 1.

The resignations followed correspondence between Mr. Davis and Hon. Hugh Guthrie, federal Minister of Justice.

Minister of Justice Guthrie referred to Section 97 of the Judges' Act and he pointed to the propriety of the judges sitting on a board of inquiry when they might be called to sit in judgment on the strikers. Awaiting trial next September. The minister urged at least postponement of the trial.

Official Nominations in Alberta Will Be Made August 12, Acting Premier Hoadley Announces

P.E.I. Nominates To-day; Vote July 23

Canadian Press
Edmonton, July 16.—The Alberta provincial election will be held on Thursday, August 22, it was announced to-day by Hon. George Hoadley, Acting Premier. Nomination day will be August 12.

Announcement of the election date finds the political parties ready for balloting day. For the sixty-three seats in the Legislature, it is expected more than 200 candidates will be nominated.

The Liberal party, under the leadership of W. R. Howson of Edmonton, has sixty-one candidates nominated, with the United Farmers of Alberta, in power in Alberta since 1921 and now headed by Premier H. G. Reid, with forty-one. The Conservatives, led by D. M. Duggan, have thirty-eight nominees. Several nomination conventions are yet to be held.

ABERNATHY'S PARTY

Alberta's fourth and newest party, the Social Credit Party of Alberta, with William Abernathy, Calgary school teacher-evangelist as its chief, will have a candidate in every constituency. The names of the Social Credit candidates nominated have been kept secret, but with the announcement of the election date, are expected to be made public soon.

After holding office for fourteen years, the U.F.A. Government faces its supreme test in the forthcoming election.

SOCIAL CREDIT

The major issue in social credit, and plans of all parties for new economic policies to overcome present day conditions in rural and urban centres.

The standing of the parties in the last Legislature was:

U.F.A. 36, Liberals 15, Conservatives 4, Independents 4, Labor 2, vacancy 1. Total 63.

The vacancy followed the death of Alderman C. L. Gibbs, Labor member for Edmonton, in 1934. No by-election was held.

Announcement of the Alberta polling date comes on nomination day at Prince Edward Island. The voters of Prince Edward Island will go to the polls next Tuesday, July 23.

The Canadian Press brings news from Ottawa to-day that the date of the federal general election probably will be announced by Premier Bennett before the end of this week.

On shore, as the royal yacht moved away, packed masses of people wildly cheered and cheered again their greetings. All day thousands and more thousands arrived to swell the crowds that had spent their night in the open. It was estimated 250,000 persons lined the shore between Southsea and Le-on-Solent, off which stretched the combined might of the Home and Mediterranean fleets.

Winnipeg Relief Strikers On Way To Ontario To-day

R.C.M.P. Watch 300 Pass, in Buses and Autos, Heading For Provincial Border; No Effort to Stop Movement Toward Kenora

To-morrow 200 More Plan to Go

Canadian Press
Lockport, Man., July 16.—Manitoba's striking relief camp workers met their first Royal Canadian Mounted Police patrol on the way to Kenora, Ont., at Lockport to-day, eighteen miles north of Winnipeg.

Twelve R.C.M.P. were sitting in the shade of trees at the side of the highway when the strikers' caravan of eleven buses and several motor cars from Winnipeg approached.

They watched the singing marchers go by and then climbed into three patrol cars and started after them. It appeared the R.C.M.P. were going to escort the strikers to the Manitoba-Ontario border, as was done in the case of the six-man vanguard that reached Kenora last week.

START OF TREK

Canadian Press
Winnipeg, July 16.—Following the trail blazed last week by a six-man advance guard, nearly 400 relief strikers from Manitoba relief camps left here shortly after noon to-day, bound for the Manitoba-Ontario boundary in a resumption of their march to Ottawa.

Approximately 300 men squeezed into eleven buses and about seventy-five more into passenger automobiles loaded by sympathetic citizens and headed east on the ninety-eight-mile trip over the TransCanada highway.

The men planned to disembark at the boundary and remain there until the 200 or so strikers left behind could follow. These men are expected to leave here to-morrow, when the buses and automobiles return.

TO WALK FIFTY MILES

From the Manitoba-Ontario boundary the strikers' army plans to march south to Kenora, Ont., fifty miles eastward. Since last Thursday an advance guard of six strikers led by Lloyd Evans has awaited the mass movement in the Ontario town.

The forerunners reached Kenora in taxis hired here and made the trip without difficulty. They were stopped three times for questioning by R.C.M.P. patrols, but otherwise were unmolested.

A spokesman for the men thanked Winnipeg citizens for their hospitality before the departure to-day. In a tag day last Saturday the strikers realized approximately $2,000, which financed to-day's movement.

ORDERLY DEPARTURE

The departure to-day was quiet and orderly. The men filed into the buses at the Exhibition Grounds on the city's outskirts, where for weeks they had idled, awaiting government action on their demands for improved camp conditions and work with wages. City police made no effort to interfere.

LOG OUTPUT INCREASES

Scale to End of June Shows Camps in B.C. Advanced Production 20 Per Cent

Logging camps of British Columbia turned out 1,081,413,000 feet of saw logs in the first six months of this year, an increase of close to 200,000,000 feet over the corresponding period of 1934, figures released by the forest branch of the Department of Lands showed to-day.

While this amounts to an increase of about 20 per cent over the production for the first half of 1934, it was slightly below the scale for the six months ending December 31, which was 1,189,000,000 feet.

The June scale of 259,726,000 board feet was the highest monthly total for the period, and compared with 258,364,000 feet in May.

This heavy production, left larger stocks on hand at the end of June than was the case a year ago. Part of this is believed due to the falling off in Japanese and Chinese markets. Lumbermen are reported skeptical about the outlook for the rest of the year due to these factors.

At a rough estimate it is calculated the increase production meant work for an additional 1,800 men in the woods, as compared with the first half of 1934.

Output of ties and poles was also higher. The figures, with the amount for 1934 in brackets, were: Poles, 3,137,971 lineal feet (1,769,068); ties, 698,170 pieces (500,033); cordwood, 66,418 cords (78,441).

CAMP STRIKE AT HOPE, B.C.

Fifty Provincial Police Gather Where 200 Men Refuse to Continue Work

Canadian Press
Vancouver, July 16.—Thirty-eight British Columbia Police left Vancouver to-day for Hope, where some 200 men in relief camps in that vicinity have refused to work.

Authorities have told the men they must either start work or leave camp. The possibility this order might result in trouble led to the dispatching of the provincials. There will be about fifty police at Hope to-day.

It is stated the strikers are chiefly from among men who arrived here after a trek to Regina.

There are about 400 men in the camps in the Hope district.

Along with the fresh relief camp trouble, reports of attacks on various persons, arising out of the Vancouver longshore strike, continue to come into city police.

Robert McLean received hospital treatment after being beaten at Vernon and Hastings Streets.

Jim Wolfe, thirty-four, alleged to have been stopping trucks at Alexander and Columbia Avenue, was arrested, charged with assaulting a police constable who told him to stop.

A driver for the Mainland Transfer Co. reported five men had slashed at his load of blankets with knives.

HOUSE BURNED

The home of J. Gregoire, lower Port Mann Road, an employee on the New Westminster waterfront, was burned yesterday evening, and police are investigating. Mrs. Gregoire was alone in the home and was awakened by the crackling of flames.

WIDE SEARCH FOR FUGITIVE

Many Police Hunt Him

Seattle, July 16.—Deputy sheriffs and Seattle police were blockading roads on the east shore of Lake Washington to-day after a woman garage employee at Medina had notified authorities a man she identified as William Dainard, or Mahan, fugitive Weyerhaeuser kidnaper suspect and believed to be the slayer yesterday of two Fuyallup policemen, had bought gasoline for a sedan at the garage.

He was accompanied by another man, she said.

The woman told officers the man had a scar at the corner of his mouth, one of the marks by which Dainard can be identified.

Tacoma, Wash., July 16.—Grim-faced possemen, fingering their guns, blocked highways and plunged through underbrush in the Fuyallup Valley to-day as they sought a bank robber suspect, the slayer of two policemen.

KEYNOTE SPEECH BY KING AUG. 7

Ottawa, July 16.—St. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, probably will deliver the keynote speech of his party's general election campaign in Kingston on or about August 7, it was learned to-day.

He will speak in support of the local Liberal candidate, Professor Norman Macleod Rogers of Queen's University, private secretary to Mr. King during part of the latter's term as Prime Minister.

Professor Rogers recently published a biography of the Liberal chief. He will oppose General A. E. Ross, present conservative member for the Kingston riding.

No further details of campaign plans of the Liberal leader have been disclosed.

Great Crowds See Moon In Eclipse

Interesting Astronomical Event, Best in Fifty Years, Draws Many People to Hilltops and Waterfront

Favored with a clear sky, Victorians yesterday evening witnessed a rare sight in the total eclipse of the moon. The display was seen by thousands of persons who lined the waterfront and hill tops. Some of them used telescopes and field glasses.

The eclipse was reminiscent of that seen in 1910, when Halley's comet also appeared. Astronomers hailed it as one of the clearest eclipses for many years. It was the longest visible eclipse in fifty years.

The moon arose out of a haze on the southeastern horizon a few minutes after 8 o'clock. For several minutes it was somewhat hidden from view and seen only by those with telescopes.

It was not long, however, before it rose above the fog. It was still in the umbra, but its path was easily discernible as it rose higher. It was during this total blotting out of the moon that watchers noticed, to probably a greater degree than ever before, that the moon was a glowing body, an appearance which it does not have at night. The glowing rim at the edge of the shadow was not unlike that which is seen during an

NO LUMBER SENT TO JAPAN

B.C. Gets No Orders as New Surtax on Canadian Trade Voted

Canadian Press
Vancouver, July 16.—British Columbia lumber and log exports to Japan will be entirely wiped out should the Japanese government carry out the threat to impose a surtax of 50 per cent on July 20, H. R. MacMillan, head of the H. R. MacMillan Export Company, declared to-day.

A Tokyo dispatch to-day said the Cabinet had approved the surtax for lumber and other items of Canada's chief exports to Japan and an imperial ordinance promulgating it was expected July 20.

NO ORDERS NOW

"For the first time in fifteen years," said Mr. MacMillan, "we have no orders on hand from Japan. For the last two months no orders have been placed by Japanese importers because of the prospect of the tax. Advice from our agents in the Orient

RADIO BOARD MAN RESIGNS

J. N. Cartier Expected to Be Stevens Party's Leader in Quebec

Canadian Press
Ottawa, July 16.—Jacques Narcisse Cartier, Montreal, will be the Quebec leader of the new Reconstruction Party of Hon. H. H. Stevens, according to reports to-day. It is understood the announcement will be made to-night.

Mr. Cartier resigned to-day as vice-chairman of the Radio Broadcasting Commission. He is a former Conservative organizer.

The resignation will be effective to-morrow.

In his communication to Mr. Bennett, Mr. Cartier said:

"I am convinced that in these difficult times it is incumbent on me to perform a more public spirited service than that represented by my present task. I feel my fellow citizens have a right to expect something more from one in a position to lend active help along more important lines. I therefore feel I must free myself from my present position without delay."

Mr. Cartier voiced appreciation of the co-operation given him by his colleagues on the Radio Commission and its personnel.

Succeeding Thomas Mahar of Quebec on the commission, Mr. Cartier has been in office only since November 24, 1934.

WORD ON FEDERAL VOTING DATE SOON

Canadian Press
Ottawa, July 16.—The Cabinet went into session this afternoon with the expectation considerable progress would be made in settling on the Senate and other vacancies which have accumulated to an unprecedented volume.

With more than forty important appointments to be made it was stated many of them should be announced not later than to-morrow.

Indications to-day were Prime Minister R. B. Bennett would leave at the end of this week for his postponed holiday and rest. In that event it is considered likely appointments and cabinet reorganization as well as announcement of the election date, would be completed this week.

Vatican Asks German Change

Associated Press
Vatican City, July 16.—It was learned to-day the Vatican has protested strongly to the German Government against its failure to carry out terms of the concordat with the Vatican.

The note sent to Berlin follows the lines of the vigorous statement published on the front page of the newspaper Osservatore Romano yesterday. It protests these three points:

1. Forcing Catholics to abide by the Nazi sterilization law.
2. Encroachment on the free existence of Catholic lay organizations.
3. Attacks on the freedom of the Catholic press.

FULFORD INN, Fulford Harbor, B.C.

Col. A. Markham, Vancouver, Dies

Resident of That City Since 1906; Cleared Shaughnessy Heights

Canadian Press
Vancouver, July 16.—Lieut.-Col. Arthur Markham, pioneer of New Brunswick and British Columbia, died today, aged ninety-four. He had been in poor health for some time.

A man who made his mark in two provinces—New Brunswick and British Columbia—Lieut.-Col. Alfred Markham was one of Vancouver's most active citizens for nearly thirty years.

Born in Lincolnshire, England, in 1841, he spent his early life in railway work. In England, although shortly before leaving for Canada he was manager of a deep-sea fishing concern. His arrival in North America was a dramatic one. In February, 1864, the steamer Bohemian on which he was a passenger, plunged into a heavy fog and was wrecked on the rocky shore of Cape Elizabeth, near Portland, Maine, with the loss of forty-two lives. Markham reached safety in an open boat but lost everything except the clothes he wore.

TOWN NAMED FOR HIM

Following his arrival in Canada Alfred Markham settled in King's County, N.B., where he operated some manganese mines for a time, and his success led to the establishment of a settlement which still bears the name of Markhamville. Towards the end of the last century he joined the late Senator W. H. Thorne and the late Dr. S. D. Scott in founding the Saint John Sun, of which he was managing director until its sale in 1906.

CLEARED AREA

After his arrival in British Columbia in 1906 he became interested in an ill-fated venture to transplant eastern oysters into Pacific waters. He then entered the service of the Canadian Pacific Railway and undertook the task of clearing of what is now Shaughnessy Heights, Vancouver's fashionable residence section. Subsequently he took charge of the C.P.R.'s gardens at Kerrisdale, then a suburb of Vancouver, and later was supervisor of gardens at the Shaughnessy Military Hospital.

Throughout his long residence in Canada he maintained a keen interest in military affairs. He organized the Princess Louise Hussars at Sussex, New Brunswick, and became the unit's lieutenant.

In his youth Col. Markham was an enthusiastic oarsman and retained his devotion to athletics for many years.

Mrs. Markham, formerly Miss Maida Turnbull of Saint John, daughter of a United Empire Loyalist family, died in Vancouver early in 1914.

Col. Markham is survived by his son Fred, of Toronto; four daughters, Edith, at home; Mrs. J. E. Secord, Saint John, N.B.; Mrs. J. J. Foote, Toronto; and Mrs. Philip Betteford, Vancouver. Another son, Captain Ralph Markham, was killed in the Great War.

JUDGES QUIT RIOT INQUIRY

commission hearing until the criminal charges are disposed of.

TO CONSIDER ACTION

"What action will be taken will be a matter for future consideration by the government of Saskatchewan," Mr. Davis stated in announcing the judges had withdrawn from the commission.

Chief Justice J. T. Brown of the Saskatchewan Court of King's Bench, chairman of the commission, in a telegram to Mr. Guthrie, said:

"As there is a conflict of opinion between us as to the legality of our acting without your consent we would not under any circumstances wish to set without securing same."

The other appointees were Mr. Justice W. M. Martin of the Saskatchewan Court of Appeal, and Judge A. E. Donk of the Prince Albert District Court.

NOT QUESTIONED BEFORE

In the telegraphic correspondence with Mr. Guthrie, the Saskatchewan Attorney-General held that similar appointments in this and other provinces had never been questioned by Ottawa.

Mr. Guthrie replied:

"The fact that inquiries have been held before judicial commissions without a previous nomination by the federal government would afford no justification for such procedure now or in the future. I must also point out that according to your wire, the scope of the proposed inquiry is not provincial but inter-provincial, and probably national in its implications, and this government cannot permit an inquiry which may involve its actions and the conduct of its officers by a provincial commission which it has not nominated."

Calgary, July 16.—A brief shower yesterday evening followed by cooling breezes brought relief to Alberta citizens after a week-end heat wave which took a toll of seven lives—victims of rivers and creeks.

To-day temperatures were lower as forecasts of show brought welcome news. In some districts the mercury had topped the century mark over the week-end.

Great Fleet Off Portsmouth To-day Reviewed By King

Then, as the last gun roared simultaneously on every ship, the ship's bands played the National Anthem STOOD IN WATER

On shore, so great was the pressure of the crowd that men and women in the front were standing knee-deep in the placid water.

The Trinity House ship Enchantress, with great streamers of the cabinet and members of Parliament on board, led the way to the head of the fleet while overhead dived great seaplanes.

After the royal yacht reached her moorings, the King, in tribute to the democracy of the sea, received alike commanders of famous liners and skippers of fishing trawlers.

Way Cleared For Man's Trial

After Delay, Toronto Magistrate Signs Paper Returning M. Shaw to Regina

Canadian Press
Toronto, July 16.—Magistrate J. E. Jones today signed the warrant authorizing the removal to Regina for trial of Matt Shaw, alleged leader of the western camp strikers, held in jail here by R.C.M.P.

The Mounted Police officers had tried for several days unsuccessfully to obtain a signature of a Toronto magistrate to return Shaw to Regina.

Shaw has been held by R.C.M.P. on a charge under Section 98 of the Criminal Code.

Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn late yesterday afternoon stated he would instruct a Toronto magistrate to sign a warrant authorizing Shaw's removal to Regina.

"The issue is not big enough to fight over," he said when he learned the federal authorities would seek issuance of a writ to force an Ontario magistrate to endorse the warrant.

STATEMENT BY GUTHRIE

Ottawa, July 16 (Canadian Press).—Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice, today issued a statement outlining circumstances under which Matt Shaw, one of the British Columbia relief camp strikers, was arrested in Toronto for the Regina police under Section 98 of the Criminal Code and the subsequent difficulties with the Toronto police magistrates over the removal of the prisoner to Regina.

The warrant for the arrest had been issued in Regina, the minister said, but before it could be executed Shaw had left for Toronto. When he was arrested there at the request of Regina authorities a Mounted Police officer was sent to Toronto with the necessary warrant to take him back to Regina.

The police magistrate in Toronto advised the officer he had been ordered by the Ontario Attorney-General not to endorse the warrant, "notwithstanding Section 98 of the Criminal Code," which authorizes such endorsement.

AGENT INSTRUCTED

"On Friday of last week," the minister said, "word was received by the Department of Justice of the refusal of the Toronto magistrate to endorse the warrant, and instructions were sent to a legal agent of the department in Toronto to appear before the magistrate, together with the constable, and make formal application for endorsement of the warrant in accordance with the provisions of Section 98."

"Yesterday afternoon word was received from the agent of the Department of Justice the magistrate had now agreed to endorse the warrant to compel the return of Matt Shaw to Regina to answer the charge laid against him before the police magistrate there."

the greatest peace-time war manœuvres ever held by the Italian army.

Italian militarists asserted that mobilization of two new military divisions would make Italy ready for any eventuality in East Africa.

This confidence was based on military opinion that for the present at least, ten white divisions, aided by some 75,000 native troops in the colonies of Eritrea and Somaliland, would be more than sufficient for a push into Ethiopia.

MANY BERLIN JEWS BEATEN

Canadian Press from Havas
Berlin, July 16.—Quiet prevailed in Berlin today in the wake of violent anti-Jewish riots which disturbed Kurfuerstendamm Street and other districts.

The rioting lasted two hours as a mob of nearly 1,000 Nazis pursued and beat numerous Jews and suspected Jews. It died down suddenly at midnight after an "unestimated" number of persons had been arrested.

A communiqué issued by the official German news bureau described the disorders as "a popular and spontaneous manifestation provoked by the insolence of the Jews."

CAFE PATRONS MISTREATED

Anti-Jewish demonstrations occurred also in other quarters of Berlin. In the Neukölln quarter, inhabited by working men, Nazis systematically invaded cafes and restaurants, where patrons were questioned and many of them mistreated.

According to witnesses, the trouble began when a storm-trooper jostled a Jew passing a theatre which was showing an anti-Jewish film. The Nazi was arrested but released later.

The Nazis, newspapers reported yesterday afternoon invited Nazis to protest "energetically against Jewish insolence." By nightfall the capital was filled with brown-shirted militiamen parading the streets in company with the regular police patrols.

MANY BEATEN

As word of the disorders spread, throngs flocked into the Kurfuerstendamm, known as a popular gathering place for Jews. Attackers seized and beat every man they believed resembled a Jew. Cries of "Down with the Jews" and "Throw the Jews Out" resounded through the district.

Riot cars rushed fifty-two detachments of helmeted police to the scene. They found the Hotel Bristol Cafe a scene of desolation, tables upset and plate-glass windows smashed.

Most of the rioters were brown-shirted storm troops and wore the boots of storm troopers.

CLEAR NEAR MIDNIGHT

The movement from the umbra commenced at 9:50 o'clock, when the thread of light on the eastern side became larger, gradually growing into the shape of a jelly bean. By 10:45 o'clock it had completely passed out of the umbra and about an hour later it cleared the penumbra.

Professional and amateur astronomers throughout the city watched the display throughout its whole process.

At the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory on Little Saanich Mountain, while at Victoria College the grounds were covered with interested onlookers, who gazed through a six-inch and three-and-a-half-inch telescopes. The vast crowds lined the waterfront and took vantage points all over Beacon Hill Park and Gonzales Hill.

From an astronomical point of view the eclipse was disappointing in view of the fact that the moon was too low for observation with the big telescopes.

NO SURFACE CHANGES

Williams Bay, Wis., July 16 (Canadian Press).—Astronomers at Yerkes Observatory said today they learned during the lunar eclipse last night that there had been no changes in the craters on the surface of the moon since the last time it was covered by the earth's shadow.

Canadian Press

New York, July 16.—The moon, totally eclipsed by the earth, shown copper-colored from refracted rays last night and early today in a celestial spectacle that kept millions up past bedtime.

The eclipse was the longest visible in Canada and United States in fifty years. There will not be another of such length for another half century.

The phenomenon came with direct alignment of sun, earth and moon, the moon sliding through the earth's umbra, which extends 860,000 miles into space, at a point approximately 226,000 miles away.

The moon touched the penumbra, in which part of the sun's light is cut off, at 8:15 p.m. Pacific standard time, and reached the umbra, or totally dark shadow, at 9:15 p.m.

At 9:50 it was in total eclipse, emerging from the other side of the thick cone an hour and forty minutes later, and clearing the penumbra at 11:35 p.m.

The refracted rays from the sun, which gave the eclipsed moon a pale phosphorescent copper color and made it still visible, were bent around and directed into the earth's umbra by the vaporous substances about the earth's surface.

"New Deal" In Britain Vetoed

Lloyd George's Plan Rejected By Cabinet; General Election Next Spring

London, July 16.—Political observers today believed the forthcoming British general election would not be held until next spring. Cautious parliamentarians contended this would enable the reshuffled government to place its case before the country in more detail than has been possible hitherto.

Previous speculation has mentioned this coming autumn as a possible date. The last general election was in October, 1931.

Meanwhile, the cabinet, having definitely rejected the "New Deal" programme set forth by Mr. MacDonald Lloyd George, war-time Prime Minister, prepared to publish next Monday a detailed and reasoned statement explaining its action.

It was understood the statement would firmly reject suggestions like nationalization of the coal, cotton, iron and steel industries and the payment of pensions at the age of sixty. It was estimated the "New Deal" would cost $100,000,000 annually.

Mr. Lloyd George would not be told that his scheme would not cure unemployment, as he claims, and could not be effected in two years as he suggested, without abolition of parliamentary control. The Little Welshman proposed a prosperity loan of $250,000,000 (almost $1,250,000,000) for financing productive public works.

Mr. Lloyd George announced he would challenge the government on his scheme at the general election.

The government's move yesterday evening followed four months' study of the scheme by a cabinet committee. It followed publication of details of the plan.

Throughout the night the search for the killer went on with some officers believing they hunted William Dainard, alias Mahan, convicted bank robber and fugitive in the George Weyerhaeuser kidnapping case.

Chief of Police Frank Chadwick and Patrolman Harry Storm of Puyallup were moured to-day at that little town as hero officers who died yesterday before the gunfire of a man they stopped shortly after the Orting State Bank at Orting had been held up and robbed of $500.

G-MEN JOIN HUNT

G-men were with the police, deputy sheriffs, constables and citizens who ransacked empty houses, questioned farmers, traversed berry patches and pea fields and crawled through tangled underbrush and dense second growth in the hopes the killer might still be in the vicinity of Puyallup, where the officers were shot down in quick succession by a man who got out of a stolen automobile.

The federal bureau of investigation agents joined the manhunt late yesterday evening, a fact which increased speculation as to the possibility the slayer was Dainard, object of a nationwide hunt since he escaped a Butte, Montana, detective June 8, leaving behind him an automobile containing $15,000 of the $200,000 Weyerhaeuser ransom.

A report came from an official source here Saturday that the G-men who had clustered here for the kidnapping trial of Mrs. Margaret Thuliu Waley were hunting Dainard in the vicinity.

The robber, scar-faced and scot-spoiled, appeared at the Orting Bank shortly before noon yesterday, aimed a gun at Leslie Stone, bank teller, and in a low tone said: "Hand it over." Stone gave him $500 in currency. The robber whirled and left the bank quickly, with Stone seizing a gun and firing at him on the street.

Responding to the general alarm, Chadwick and Storm parked their automobile on a side road between the adjacent towns of Sumner and Puyallup and waited. A few minutes later an automobile drove into the road. The driver saw the officers, turned the car about and drove toward Sumner.

FIRE SUDDENLY

The officers pursued him. They overtook the machine and it stopped. The driver got out, approached the officers in their car and suddenly began firing. Chadwick died with a bullet through his body. Storm, shot three times, died a few minutes later.

Police from Tacoma, constables and sheriff's deputies from Pierce County and forces from the King County sheriff's office at once joined in a hunt throughout the valley.

Later dispatches said fear the Orting Bank bandit had slipped through the cordon of peace officers and had gone into hiding in Seattle or Tacoma, was expressed by authorities this afternoon.

of the eclipse was only slightly past its meridian.

Astronomers at the naval observatory in Washington, D.C., made many photographs of the spectacle, but made no effort to check their time instruments. The haze with the earth's shadow made accurate observation impossible.

Harvard University scientists were disappointed by the clouds. They were not even able to take pictures.

NOT SEEN AT NELSON

Nelson, B.C., July 16.—Nelson people did not see the eclipse of the moon yesterday evening owing to the heavy clouds covering the sky. The clouds followed one of the brightest and hottest days of the year on Sunday.

PYTHON COILS AROUND MAN

Amityville, N.Y., July 16.—Their jungle blood quickened by the humid heat, a giant python and a lion went on a rampage at Frank Buck's wild animal camp and injured two men late yesterday.

Otis Lloyd, a trainer, was crushed in the coils of the enraged snake, which had writhed loose from the hands of half a dozen handlers and buried its fangs in Lloyd's arm.

Stuart Roe, another trainer, fell before the snarling charge of the full-grown lion which broke from his handlers as they were taking it from a temporary cage. Roe's arm and shoulder were ripped and torn by the infuriated beast before he was rescued.

At the Reed Hospital, attendants said Lloyd was "very seriously injured," and that an operation had been performed to save Roe's right arm.

The full extent of Lloyd's injuries, they said, would not be determined until after X-rays of his entire body had been developed.

The python, a twenty-six-foot monster, was being carried stretched out from the cage in which it had been shipped from the Malay jungle.

Suddenly it convulsed, throwing off the hands of those carrying it, and in a flash had whirled itself around Lloyd.

Lloyd shouted for help, but it was a full five minutes, a witness said, before the combined strength of four handlers could drag the coils free of Lloyd's body.

Winnipeg Camp Strikers On Way To Ottawa To-day

Questioned yesterday evening, when the strikers definitely decided to move out of Winnipeg to-day, Royal Canadian Mounted Police here would not say whether they would halt the movement.

Twenty-five R.C.M.P. were reported to have left to-day for Kenora, but this could not be confirmed.

Ottawa, July 16.—Outposts against "On-to-Ottawa" marchers on a geographical basis have been set up. Manned by A Division of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. East of Ottawa, they extend to Vaudeville, Que. Westward the boundary is Belleville, Ont. Northward the territory covers both Quebec and Ontario, the Gatineau Valley and as far north as North Bay, Ont., where a considerable body of marchers have been reported heading.

No large body of marchers so far has succeeded in invading this territory.

Regina, July 16 (Canadian Press).—The R.C.M.P. granted strikers' demand that they be allowed to pass through the district court here to-day, the amounts totaling $26,000.

Ball for Joe Belaback, Winnipeg, and Kellett Cole, Vancouver, was set tions to those attempting to rescue him. He did not lose consciousness.

Most of the other trainers on duty were required to subdue the raging lion. Both the lion and the snake eventually were housed in their permanent cages, as the other animals in the camp added to the uproar.

Suit Is Settled By
Randolph Churchill

London, July 16.—A political Liberal action against young Randolph Churchill and the editor and publisher of a London weekly newspaper was settled yesterday. Sir Thomas White, prominent Liverpool Conservative, had instituted proceedings after publication of an article contributed by the son of the noted disheard.

At the time the article was written Randolph Churchill was making an unsuccessful by-election fight in Wavertree, Liverpool.

The defendants agreed to pay $5,000 and costs of proceedings, while counsel for Churchill expressed the latter's apology for the injury he had caused Sir Thomas.

The article made gossip allegations of a deal in "municipal honor" and plaintiff's counsel denied there was any of truth in any of the statements.

ACCIDENT AT NIAGARA

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 16.—(Canadian Press)—David B. Adams of Stamford, escaped death yesterday when he was pushed over the Niagara cliff at Horseshoe Falls by a crane but landed on a ledge ten feet below. Workmen rescued him from his precarious position. He suffered injuries to his face, head, arms and hands, but his condition in hospital to-day was not regarded as serious.

PRAIRIE DEATH

Edam, Sask., July 16.—(Canadian Press)—Rev. Thomas Harrison, seventy-four, doctor of literature (Oxford) and provincial chaplain of the Canadian Legion as well as honorary national vice-president, died at his home here yesterday after a long illness. He had seen service in British campaign on three fronts. He leaves a widow and eight children between the ages of seven and seventeen.

MIGRATION
MOVE STARTED

British Conservative M.P.'s Discuss Possibility of Sending Many to Dominions

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer
London, July 16.—Forty-five Conservative members of the House of Commons and thirty Conservative members of the House of Lords have banded themselves together to "ginger up" empire migration. Known as the "Imperial Policy Group," they declare their policy to be based on "true Tory faith directed to an imperial end."

A motion Lord Mansfield will submit to the Upper House to-morrow will mark the opening of the campaign. It will draw attention to the lack of any policy of His Majesty's Government for imperial and colonial development, and of any long-term proposals for the permanent reduction of unemployment in this country by a scheme of property organized overseas settlement in co-operation with His Majesty's governments overseas.

GROUP SETTLEMENT
A delegation from the group which visited the "distressed areas" where unemployment is chronic, reported they were convinced the only solution was to be found in empire migration. Their idea is community settlement in the dominions and colonies. They point out that present schemes for moving unemployed from the distressed areas to small holdings elsewhere in the United Kingdom affects only 2,000 families, while there are 150,000 families in need of moving.

While their policy covers a wide range, imperial development is described as the main theme.

RELIEF RESOLUTION

Ottawa, July 16.—(Canadian Press).—A motion calling on the Dominion and provincial governments to assume the full cost of direct relief and the cost of all unemployment relief works which are not an obligation of the city taxpayers, has been adopted unanimously by the Ottawa city council.

U.S. PROCESSING
TAXES VETOED

Associated Press
Boston, July 16.—The United States circuit court of appeals here to-day ruled the processing taxes collected under the Agricultural Adjustment Act unconstitutional. The court was divided two to one in its decision.

The decision was handed down in the case of the Hoosac Mills, which had challenged the constitutionality of the processing tax and appealed to the circuit court from an unfavorable decision by Federal Judge Elisha H. Brewster.

The Hoosac Mills receivers, had asked recovery of $91,694 paid in taxes under the A.A.A.

SAFETY LEAGUE
IN EXPERIMENT

Canadian Press
Toronto, July 16.—An experiment in human nature was launched here yesterday when 1,000 Toronto citizens received a $1 bill in the mail.

The currency was enclosed in an envelope with a message from the Ontario Safety League.

"Here's a dollar. Keep it if you want to, but I don't think you will," read the letter from J. F. H. Wye, secretary of the league.

The experiment started, officials said, when a citizen donated $1,000 to the league and asked it be sent to 1,000 persons as an appeal for funds to protect the safety of children.

The donor pointed out 1,000 children had been killed by autos in Canada since 1925, and declared, "The enclosed dollar is evidence of one man's faith in humanity and is invested in the belief every dollar will come back—and that each dollar will bring back more."

MUSIC FREE OF LEVIES IS URGED

Canadian Press
Toronto, July 16.—Because the Y.M.C.A. is a religious and charitable organization it should be exempt from the license charges of the Canadian Performing Rights Society, Richard Davis, personnel division secretary, contended yesterday at the inquiry before Judge James Parker into the society's operations.

Mr. Davis explained music was used chiefly in religious services, at meetings, "sing-songs," social evenings and for dancing.

He contended that if the license fee were raised by the Canadian Performing Rights Society from $10 to $30 it would prove a heavy burden on the Y.M.C.A. workers, many of whom were jobless.

Belfast Streets
Are Boarded Up

Police Close Some Highways to Prevent Renewal of Riots

Associated Press
Belfast, Northern Ireland, July 16.—Soldiers on riot duty since the outbreak of disturbances following celebration of the anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne last Friday were withdrawn to-day.

Large detachments of police stood ready, however, to meet any recurrence of the Protestant-Catholic fighting that in four days resulted in five deaths and the wounding of seventy-five.

Narrow streets running into York Street, the riot centre, were boarded up to enable authorities to cut off any future trouble makers.

Meanwhile there was a violent reaction to the Ulster trouble in the Irish Free State, where Protestant shops were attacked. In Kerry, County Donegal, window smashing and fires caused damaged estimated at $10,000 (approximately $48,800).

Riots broke out during the night despite the strictly-enforced curfew established Saturday.

In the Millfield quarter a young man was shot through the body, and on Twickenham Street another youth was seriously wounded in a clash between demonstrators and police. A third elash occurred in Donegal Place.

HEAVY GAMBLING LOSSES

Seattle, July 16.—(Associated Press)—Filipino members of the Cannery Workers' and Farm Laborers' Union lost half of their million dollar annual income in Seattle gambling dens, union officials reported in detailed reports here yesterday.

The reports, signed by Virgil S. Duryngan, union president, were submitted to a city council committee investigating vice conditions.

HOUSING ACT
PLANS MADE

Federal Government Expects to Start Loan System Within Few Weeks

Canadian Press
Ottawa, July 16.—Within a matter of weeks it will be possible for prospective home builders in Canada to secure loans up to 80 per cent of the cost for a long term and at a low interest rate, through the operations of the Housing Act adopted at the last session of Parliament.

Machinery of the act is being rapidly whipped into shape under direction of Finance Minister E. N. Rhodes and Dr. W. C. Clark, deputy minister. It is anticipated it will be possible shortly to announce the list of approved loaning companies throughout Canada to whom borrowers may apply for benefits under the act.

Prospective builders will deal directly with the loaning companies and there will be no special government body set up to deal with the public. An official of the Department of Finance will have specific charge of the government's loans, but the public contact will be with the companies only and they will operate under the act in accordance with contracts between them and the government.

CONFERENCES HELD
Several conferences have been held with the representatives of leading loan companies and the form of contract will be finally discussed at conferences this week. Once it has been mutually agreed on and approved by the Governor-in-Council, loaning operations may be opened.

Although details of operations through which loans may be secured remain to be settled, it is understood in a general way the individual seeking benefits of the Housing Act would apply to the nearest approved loaning company. He would set forth his building proposals and the company would secure an appraisal of the cost. The company could then offer a loan up to 80 per cent of the appraised value or estimated cost, whichever is the lesser, with the understanding 30 per cent of the money would be advanced from the $10,000,000 appropriation provided in the Housing Act.

It is the hope of the department that the average interest rate of the home builder will not be more than 5 per cent, and the period will be for ten or twenty years, where loans in the past have been for not more than five-year periods.

MONTHLY PAYMENTS
To protect the safety of the investment and render it more convenient and simple for the owner to meet his instalments, payments of interest and principal will be monthly.

Practically all life insurance companies, loan companies operating under Dominion charters, as well as some loan companies operating with provincial charters and some trust companies, have signified their desire to co-operate with the government in carrying out the act.

The act contemplates all buildings used solely for human habitation, from the single cottage to big apartment houses. Judging from the great interest throughout Canada, apparent from the flood of letters seeking information, officials to-day expressed the opinion the entire $10,000,000 appropriation would be quickly absorbed, creating work valued at $50,000,000.

The act also provides the Economic Council of Canada shall institute an inquiry into slum clearance possibilities.

Premier Reid Says Premier Pattullo Astray in Talking About Alberta Legislature

Canadian Press
Edmonton, July 16.—"What business is it of his?" Premier R. G. Reid said yesterday when his attention was drawn to a report from Victoria in which Premier T. D. Pattullo of British Columbia had stated legislation would be introduced in that province to prevent a Legislature's term ending without the election date being announced, as had occurred in Alberta.

"I think he has his nerve to say anything about our affairs," he said. "He can do what he likes in British Columbia and we will attend to our own affairs here."

Energy Is New
Universe Theory

Deductions Made By Dr. E. J. Asnis of Philadelphia Challenge Einstein's Theory

By JOHN LEAR
Associated Press Staff Writer
Philadelphia, July 16.—A new theory that violates a spaceless universe built of energy alone was projected from the field of medicine into the world of physics to-day to challenge Prof. Albert Einstein's latest conception of matter as "two sheets of space bridged by an atom."

Energy and matter are forms of the same thing and space is discarded in this new concept, advanced by a noted pathologist, Dr. Eugene J. Asnis.

Abandoning mathematics, the theory likens the universe to a huge electric fan—with energy as blades—constantly speeding up and slowing down.

Energy at maximum is like the fan blades at high speed, Dr. Asnis says. Matter can be detected by the eye. Energy slows down just like the fan, however, and eventually becomes visible as matter.

BEYOND MATHEMATICS

Although contradicting the Einstein belief that space and matter are similar, Dr. Asnis agrees with the famous German's statement that science must go beyond mathematics to find the answer to the riddle of life.

The new theory abandons mathematics, therefore, and comes to an answer to Einstein's quest for "zero mass."

"Zero mass," the pathologist says, is energy at its maximum, but "until the mathematicians and physicists find an equation equivalent to zero, they will be unable to solve the enigma."

ZERO AS UNIT

"Their other choice will be to accept zero as their unit and they will save themselves new hypotheses and new theories."

This Dr. Asnis does, substituting zero for numbers in a system he calls "zerote." The terms "finite" and "infinite" are discarded and replaced by "maximum" and "minimum" because the latter are relative terms.

The "minimum" is matter, or mass; the "maximum" is energy in its purest form. As links between them, he gives, in order, the molecule, the atom, the electron, the photon or "sollicule," the cosmic ray or "cosmicule," and finally, as the ultimate positive particle, the proton or ether.

North Battleford, Sask., July 16.—(Canadian Press)—Whipped into flame by a strong breeze, embers, all that remained of buildings valued at $30,000 which were raised to the ground in a blaze early in the day, destroyed the Canadian National Railway station at Denholm yesterday.

THREE DEATHS
IN BIG STORM

Two in Montreal and One at Montebello, Que.; Ottawa Valley Is Swept

Montreal, July 16.—One of the worst electric storms of the year swept across Montreal yesterday, beating a path of destruction and leaving behind two dead and a large number of injured with heavy property damage caused by torrential rains.

Emile Piquin, twelve, was killed instantly in Jarry Park when a tree was felled by a bolt of lightning. A girl companion was severely burned about the back.

Alderman Benjamin Goyer, sixty-nine, member of the city council of suburban St. Laurent, died of injuries received when the car in which he was driving with four others was struck by a Canadian National train at a level crossing during the heavy rain.

Other occupants of the car were taken to a hospital, where two were reported in a serious condition.

POWER FAILURE

City power lines went dead at the height of the storm and the city was left without power for ten minutes.

Fire broke out at a Dominion Textiles Limited plant when a condenser was struck by lightning, but the flames were extinguished without much damage.

Fire also broke out in the elevator machinery at the Canadian Quarries Limited and firemen had to be called.

The Montreal Light, Heat and Power Company's power house in the east end of the city was badly damaged when lightning struck transformers, necessitating fire calls.

Lightning struck the Soldiers' Monument at the harbor and sent one of the big cement capstans at the base of the monument crashing from its pedestal. The capstan was four feet high and measured four feet in diameter. The heavy circle of concrete was tipped clear of its base and fell several yards. No one was injured.

YOUTH KILLED

Ottawa, July 16.—One person killed, a child slightly injured and widespread destruction of farm outbuildings, trees and growing crops resulted from a sudden wind and electric storm which tore a path down the Ottawa Valley yesterday.

Farmers to-day were counting their losses in the shape of unroofed barns, smashed windows and destroyed orchards.

Lightning struck from a leaden sky at Montebello, Que., about forty miles east of Ottawa, killing Philippe Thomas, twenty-two, instantly as he rode with his father on a load of hay. The father was not hurt. The horses also escaped injury.

Almost simultaneously at Passett, Que., a short distance from Montebello, Real Lalonde, eleven, was struck to the ground by another bolt of lightning. He proved, however, to be superficially injured, and later a slight burn on one foot was the only mark of the accident.

"VERY LITTLE DIFFERENCE"

MR. D. B. PLUNKETT, M.P., INTERVIEWED by the morning newspaper, says there is "very little difference between the policies of Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett and Mr. Stevens, with the exception that no further drastic legislation should be enacted at present, until a revision of provincial and Dominion jurisdiction has taken place, by review of the B.N.A. Act, while Mr. Stevens believes further legislative redress or correction should be made at once and constitutional or legal adjustment arranged or made after such enactments have been found invalid by the courts."

If the constitutional question were the only difference between the policies of Mr. Bennett and Mr. Stevens, there would be no sound reason for the split between the two. But it happens that there are other differences. For example, Mr. Stevens says he wants the Central Bank of Canada to be nationalized—although he opposed that proposal when it was made by the Liberals in the House—while Mr. Bennett stands for a privately-owned institution. Mr. Stevens says he wants the tariff on agricultural implements and textiles reduced—although as a member of the government he opposed all proposals for tariff reductions when they were advanced by the Liberals—while Mr. Bennett is out for high tariffs on virtually everything.

Mr. Stevens says he wants increased income and corporation taxation—although for years as a supporter of the government he did not advocate them—while Mr. Bennett promises nothing of the sort. Mr. Stevens says he wants interest rates reduced, while Mr. Bennett and his supporters voted against that proposal when it was made in the House by one of the United Farmer members. In fact, there is very little similarity between the policies of Mr. Bennett and Mr. Stevens. Their common ground is their death-bed conversion—on the eve of an election—to policies to which both of them for four years consistently have been opposed.

Finally, in his discovery that there is very little between the two policies, Mr. Plunkett finds himself in sharp conflict with the morning newspaper which in its Sunday edition editorially criticized many features of the Stevens programme, which it described as Utopian, and to which as a supporter of Mr. Bennett and orthodox Conservatism it positively objects. It is obvious that a Stevens candidate in Victoria could not expect the support of The Colonist, even if he had the approval of Mr. Plunkett because in that gentleman's estimation there would be very little difference between the policies both were advocating.

BETTER OFF NOW OR NOT?

IT IS INTERESTING TO LOOK OVER THE files of this and other newspapers to note in these "years ago" columns what was contemplated in those earlier days. Forty years ago, for example, the police of Victoria were going to "get after" cyclists who failed to carry lights and were altogether too prone to riding on the sidewalks—failing, too, to give alarm of their approach.

Chief of Police Heatley and his force in this year of grace, 1935, have the same problem on their hands. They naturally try to "get after" the young bloods who still break the civic ordinance with the nonchalant spirit of youth. But policemen can not be everywhere. Cyclists still are riding on the sidewalks of Victoria; they still are riding at night, some of them, without lights; they still are breaking the rules. It is a dangerous practice, for the riders, motorists, and pedestrians.

Then we read in The Vancouver Sun's "thirty years ago" section of yesterday's issue that a test case had been launched to determine whether or not automobiles would be permitted to drive around Stanley Park. Judge Henderson heard the case in County Court and reserved decision.

It is not necessary to contemplate the decision of Judge Henderson. He was not able to ruminate on this day thirty years ago on the development of the automobile. He was not to know that in 1935 automobiles by the thousand every day would be running around Stanley Park and all over the world at speeds which never would have been believed possible in 1905. Nor was he to know that along the sands at Daytona a super-automobile would "crawl" along at 276 miles an hour.

The record of thirty and more years ago, however, furnishes us of the present day with interesting reminders of how the world has moved since the waning days of the nineteenth century.

Whether mankind is more contented or better off mentally and physically as a result of the various phases of scientific progress is a question. There is a school of thought which suggests that the "horse and buggy" days were the best after all. Meanwhile, we must get along as best we can in the whirl of 1935.

WHEN AND HOW?

THE CLAUSE OF MR. STEVENS'S MANIFESTO relative to the two major railway systems in Canada is suspiciously vague. Here it is:

No amalgamation of Canadian railways under private ownership, or sale of the Canadian National Railways to any group of international financiers at this time or at the valuation of to-day. A plan is being prepared by the Reconstruction Party for a rational and practical solution of the railway problem.

Just what is implied by "at this time or at the valuation of to-day"? Are we to assume that Mr. Stevens contemplates the sale of the Canadian National at some other time and at another valuation? And would it be at a lower valuation?

On this subject Mr. Stevens is not nearly as explicit as either Mr. Mackenzie King, or Hon. Dr. Manion, Mr. Bennett's Minister of Railways, both of whom have definitely declared themselves against amalgamation under private control at any time. As

"for devising a rational and practical solution of the railway problem," Mr. Stevens's record holds out very little hope in that direction. He has been a party to the systematic sapping of the national transportation system which has been going on since 1930 and which, fortunately, is now nearly at an end.

NUMBERING THEIR DAYS

NEWS CENSORSHIP IN ITALY AND Germany, rigid though it may be, does not seem to have prevented the leak of information which, according to a dispatch from Mr. A. C. Cummings, a well-known Canadian correspondent resident in London, shows that the Ethiopian adventure of Premier Mussolini and the militaristic programme of Reichsfuehrer-Chancellor Hitler in Germany are very far from popular with the Italian and German peoples.

Mr. Cummings tells us that the mobilization of the army in Italy has been attended by many disturbances almost amounting to mutiny, and though there have been delirious scenes of Fascist delight at embarkations for foreign service, in many parts of southern Italy "conscripts have had to be forced on board at the bayonet point."

We are informed, also, that in Germany strikes in submarine building yards at Bremen have led to pitched battles between armed police and workers, while in Baden political opposition to the National Socialists has become so acute that Herr Hitler has had to disband the "Steel Helmets" organization—formerly his ally.

This news from Italy and Germany, of course, suggests that a revolt is commencing against the suppression of free thought and speech—a revolt of the people against dictatorship.

In Italy and Germany this kind of suppression may last for a few years—a short time in the life of a nation—but eventually there will arise sufficient Garibaldi in Italy and Stresemann in Germany to overthrow dictatorial power and restore freedom to the people.

NOT A CHANCE

A CURIOUS FEATURE OF THE PROPAGANDA, emanating chiefly from Conservative sources, in favor of a union government is the omission of any proposal of policy. Advocates such as The Vancouver Daily Province, for example, carefully refrain from telling us precisely what a national government can, or should do, or how it could improve upon the record of the administration of Mr. Mackenzie King up to 1930. Surely there are enough platforms now before the public to supply sufficient inspiration for a policy. We have heard from Mr. Bennett by radio and in Parliament, from Mr. Stevens through his omnibus manifesto which has incorporated Liberal, Conservative and C.C.F. planks—against which, by the way, he voted consistently until a short time ago—and to-day we print the platform of Mr. Woodsworth.

Perhaps we can help the propagandists out of their difficulty. The main objective of some of the eastern champions of a coalition administration is the amalgamation of the two chief transcontinental transportation systems under private control. Others want to preserve a government in which Toryism will remain an important, if not dominant, factor, in the face of the evidence on every hand that the Canadian electorate is yearning for the elimination of every vestige of the present administration and can scarcely wait for the chance to kick it into oblivion. But it would not do to admit these things. Hence, we hear and read nothing but generalities.

It is all so much water over the dam. Certainly the Liberal party could not dream of giving endorsement to the policies which it has opposed for the last five years, and the utter failure of the present administration to solve the country's problems, by associating itself in the slightest measure with any scheme for a union government. The Canadian people have unmistakably indicated what they want in the way of government.

Just Folks

LINES TO A. J. G.

Time was, full twenty years ago,
You took me to a course and said:
"You will enjoy this game I know.
Remember, do not lift your head.
From left to right your hips must turn,
And don't forget to follow through.
You won't have very much to learn
Before you'll shoot an eighty-two."

Not later than a week had flown
Before you threw your clubs aside,
And left me there to play alone.
The game of golf had hurt your pride.
And I recall the vow you made:
To me that afternoon so madly:
"Golf is a sport when neatly played,
But torturing when it's done so badly."

Since then you've never played a round,
While I through twenty years have suffered
The knock of golf I've never found.
With all the duffers I have duffered,
I've never gained the master's touch,
But just like you I've wondered sadly
Why should I love a game so much
That constantly I play so badly?

So now to you these lines are penned
Since you from golf so soon departed.
Was it the office of a friend
In such a game to get me started?
You knew that golf would seize upon
The sweetest nature but to crab it.
Then this I long have pondered on:
"Why did you let me get the habit?"

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

THE MOLOCH OF TO-DAY
The Christian Science Monitor

These "terrible gods of the Carthaginians" are fierce enough, even over the perspective of centuries, to jolt the modern mind with the realization of the toll that superstition has exacted from humanity. And the impact of that toll is made the more forcible by another realization, namely, that mankind has not really rid itself of its Molochs. And one of them—the superstition that war is somehow a legitimate demand on the course of things or that, as one of the world's most impressive modern militarists declares, it "puts the stamp of nobility upon those peoples who have the courage to face it"—has in the still young twentieth century taken probably more human lives than the original Moloch ever did.

Loose Ends

Mr. Hitler finds a double very useful—Mr. Mussolini insists on altruism—The English make a job of nudism—And the earth's future is bright.

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

DOUBLES

IN A GERMAN town the other day thousands of good citizens turned out to watch Mr. Hitler open a new highway. The familiar figure—with the long, dark hair, the toothbrush moustache and the old raincoat stood up in an automobile and thundered out a familiar sort of speech, full of sound and fury. The cheers for the dictator echoed and re-echoed over the countryside. The figure in the automobile received them, as usual, with a fierce frown.

It was perfect, until some wrong-headed fellow observed that the real Mr. Hitler was standing in the crowd a few paces from the car. He had hired a double to open the highway. How long this has been going on, how many times the double has opened highways, delivered orations and received foreign diplomats, no one knows.

Looking at the matter superficially you may say that this childish masquerade is just another aspect of that general madness which has gripped Europe, a continent in which medicine men and witch doctors distinguish only from the medicine men and witch doctors of Africa by their steel helmets, swastikas, toothbrush moustaches and old raincoats.

You may feel a little concerned also when you realize that Mr. Hitler is Britain's new ally and naval co-operator, as a result of secret arrangements now coming to light; and close, indeed, that Britain has exchanged naval information with him which it would not give to its old friends and allies, the French.

But this is a short-sighted view of the matter. On the contrary, doubles should be used by rulers the world over to save them the trouble of meeting the public, always a boring and useless procedure. I have long thought that if our Canadian rulers could have doubles to open the highways, receive the bouquets of roses, shake the babies and plant the trees, they might have some time for the serious business of governing.

As it is, half a ruler's time is taken up with the work of grimacing, posturing, blustering, acting (and they are all such atrocious actors) and otherwise gratifying the obscene curiosity of the mob. Doubles would do that work just as well and save the originals for higher things. A good double thus would be a priceless asset to any country. But in the end probably the most satisfactory arrangement for all concerned would be to let the real ruler go forth to the grimacing, posturing, blustering and acting and let the double stay home and run the country. In many cases it might be the salvation of the state.

ALTRUIST

MR. MUSSOLINI, who has no double but spends most of his time doubling for Napoleon, has lately explained why he must have Ethiopia. "The world," said he, "must not forget that world production is useless and will become stagnant unless it is permitted to flow into undeveloped countries. Ethiopia must provide for important consumption of world and Italian production." This is the frankest and most accurate explanation of modern economics that one has heard from an active politician. Of course Italy must have Ethiopia to absorb its goods, just as Japan must have China. For under our existing arrangements it is unthinkable that the great surplus of goods should be conveyed to the people at home who need them. And it is absurd to say that the great powers of the world are not Christian when they willingly starve their own citizens in order to force goods upon backward peoples like Ethiopia and China, who don't want them. Never has history witnessed such altruism, such sheer usefulness.

But I can never get through my mind what is going to happen to world trade when there are no more ungrateful and backward peoples to have goods thrust upon them. As the present rate of expansion China will be gobbled up in a few years, India has been gobbled, Africa is in process of being gobbled. The altruistic Christian nations will soon have nobody left to benefit but the Kakimos; but you may be sure that their altruism will not falter. Only as a last desperate resort will they abandon their faith and let their own people have the goods they need.

STAR

DR. BAILEY WILLIS, an eminent scientist of Palo Alto, has announced that the world was originally an aggregation of cold substances which gravitation pulled into a tight little planetary mass between 50,000,000 and 2,000,000,000 years ago. Now the earth is just a ball of molten iron, nickel, radium and other minerals with a thin shell only 2,000 miles thick around the surface, which heaves whenever there is an earthquake. As eons pass the persistent release of atomic forces will supply heat and melt the surrounding shell with the result that Mother Earth should burst into flame and take her place gloriously among the stars.

This is a much more agreeable and spectacular future than is usually predicted by scientists, who had expected the earth to cool off and become a solid lump of ice. It is encouraging to note that instead of remaining a mere spectator in the heavens the earth is going to be started some day in the cosmic melodrama. But it is significant that it won't begin to get anywhere or make good until we have been burned up like rubbish.

SANE ATTITUDE

IN ENGLAND there have gone in strong for nudism. It takes the English quite a while to get started on anything new, but when they take it up, as they took up the manufacture of automobiles and movies, they make a job of it. Undoubtedly they will make a job of nudism, one of the few moral movements that has come out of this wicked age.

In France last week the courts adopted a similarly wholesome attitude on this question. A learned judge ruled that there was nothing immoral in a nude dance performed by a beautiful actress, who was on trial for the corruption of French morals. The learned judge said his morals weren't in the least corrupted, nor was he faintly shocked. Rudely, he ruled, had nothing to do with the case. The only question was whether the dance was artistic or obscene and it could be either, whether the lady was clothed or not.

This is a profound truth which should govern all such questions. The real test to be applied to people like the English, who wish to practice nudism is whether the sight of them in that condition is indecent or not. Alas, such is the physical deterioration of the race under the influence of machine living that few people nowadays could meet the test. Most of them would be obscene unless well disguised by their tailors. And the real reason why most people are so violently opposed to nudism is that their own vanity will not allow them to reveal themselves.

The English are more sensible about such things than we are. During the recent hot weather I hoed my garden clothed only in a pair of overalls, and I gather from various intimations reaching me lately that this noble spectacle was not appreciated by the neighborhood. Mr. Pudbury tells me that Mrs. Gumbly wanted to call in the gaucian police, and was only dissuaded from this desperate course by Mr. Pudbury's positive and solemn assurance that I was mad but harmless.

BODILY HARM

To the Editor:—Having studied law for the last three years I would like to say a few words in regard to the "U.O.N." trial.

I always understood that if one person marked another so as to leave any life-time mark whatsoever, such an offence was causing "bodily harm."

Now, if our people, especially in this free country, have to stand for such things what is this country going to be like in twenty years' time.

I think, according to law, that persons causing "bodily harm" to other persons should be severely punished.

I think that an offence such as that in connection with the "U.O.N." should not be treated in such a mild way as to let the culprit get away with suspended sentence.

EVOLUTION

To the Editor:—Having read the letters in your correspondence column on evolution, which are, by the way, very interesting and some most capable, it seems that a question might well be asked the ablest of your correspondents concerning a small pertinent matter that has cropped up in my mind. To the anti-evolutionists this query will have no significance, as of these people who do not believe or understand evolution it may readily be said, and said with the respect and deference given to any sane man's opinion, that they lack scholastic ability and mental capacity; or rather the latter is undersized, and also their elementary. I do not mean primary, education has been neglected.

The question deals with the coloring of the gull's eggs. As you are doubtless aware, these eggs are most beautifully colored and camouflaged. When we expect a colorless egg, we gaze with wonder and admiration at the development of this amazing coloring.

In the course of this natural selection, no doubt taking untold thousands of years, the parent birds, being of no understanding mind, can have no brain developing agency. Can the egg itself, being virtually inanimate, have anything to do with the march of this peculiar and marvelous coloring in the struggle for existence?

CUTWORM PLAGUE IN NEW BRUNSWICK

Associated Press
Saint John, N.B., July 16.—With tens of thousands of dollars' worth of crops already laid waste, New Brunswick farmers are lining up in a solid front to combat the worst plague of cutworms in recent years, and one of the worst in history.

Already, J. K. King, Deputy of Agriculture, estimated to-day, some 25 per cent of the mangel crop has gone, threatening feed problems for livestock and poultry raisers.

CREEK GRADE WILL BE SET

Victoria, Oak Bay and Saanich to Find Cost of Improving Bowker Stream

Victoria, Oak Bay and Saanich yesterday took preliminary steps towards the relief of potential flood conditions in the Bowker Creek watershed when they requested their respective engineers to meet, set a grade for the stream from source to outlet, and present estimates on the costs of excavations required to establish that grade.

The municipal engineers will meet on Thursday, go over the stream, and report as soon as possible to their different councils.

Indication was given by Reeve R. W. Mayhew, Oak Bay, the project would not be undertaken this year, in view of the fact funds were not available.

A suggestion was advanced the matter might be turned over to the province as a government undertaking.

Present at the meeting, over which Mayor David Leeming presided, were Aldermen John Worthington and Walter Luney, with the city engineer, G. M. Irwin, Reeve R. W. Mayhew with C. H. Topp, Oak Bay's engineer for the project, Reeve Wm. Crouch and Councillor Fred Borden with Hugo Allen, Saanich municipal engineer.

INSPECT MAPS
The gathering inspected general maps prepared by Mr. Topp from a recent intensive survey of the area and heard a description of various parts of the stream, the flow and obstacles in the way.

Mayor Leeming read Mr. Topp's letter on the project, stressing the need for joint action in order that uniform work might be done. Ditches and culverts were outlined along with general physical characteristics of the creek.

Reeve Mayhew suggested the three engineers meet on the matter and determine what action could be taken. Possibility of diverting water from the north side of Mount Tolmie towards the salt water near Mount Douglas was declared unfeasible by Mr. Allen, Saanich engineer, when that suggestion was raised.

Alderman Luney noted that the building-up-of-the-area-around-the-creek had led to increased rapid drainage into the stream and had naturally increased the speed of the flow down the creek bed.

LEGAL ADVICE

Following a repetition of the proposal the three municipal engineers work together on the project, Mr. Irwin, city engineer, suggested legal advice be sought to determine the possibility of straightening out bends in the stream, thereby preventing congestion.

Mayor Leeming broached the possibility of having the government take over the scheme.

If the proposal were to require immediate action, Oak Bay would have to withdraw. Reeve Mayhew stated, adding no funds were available in the municipality for that work at present.

Alderman Luney noted the less work done in Saanich on the creek, the better it would be for the city, since a faster flow from the northern municipality would simply pile the water up more quickly in the Victoria section.

Reeve Mayhew contended Oak Bay had been deepening and cleaning out the stream for the last eight years. But the faster that municipality carried away its water, the faster it came down from the city, he declared.

The meeting finally adopted the plan of letting the three engineers complete a check of the creek with a view to establishing the grade from source to outlet and determining the costs of excavating to meet the desired grade.

EXPLORER WHO WENT BLIND

FIFTY YEARS of difficult and dangerous exploration in the wilds of Australia won Capt. Charles Sturt the honor of knighthood just before his death, but not before the terrible hardships he had endured made him totally blind.

Sturt started his explorations into Australia in 1827. He first discovered the Darling and other rivers. In June, 1830, on a second expedition, he discovered the important Murray river and descended it to its mouth. In 1844 he discovered the stony desert of central Australia. Then he became registered as the colonel secretary of South Australia, but his trials of exploration weakened him, rendered him blind, and he had to return to England, where he was knighted.

In 1930, Australia issued the stamp shown here, commemorating the 100th anniversary of Sturt's discovery of the Murray river.

THE BEST FRIEND A THIRSTY MAN EVER HAD!

Hot, tired, thirsty? Cheer up; a dash of Eno's "Fruit Salt" in a glass of water makes a drink that really quenches thirst, cools you off, peps you up.

Eno in a glass of water reduces its temperature 2 degrees.

But Eno's "Fruit Salt" is more than a refreshing drink. It brings health. Eno sweetens the stomach because it is alkaline—neutralizes acids in foods you eat. Eno clears the intestines of poisonous waste, wards off constipation—a constant menace to health.

School Costs At Sooke Reduced

Appropriation For Coming Year Is Fixed at $2,300

Sooke, July 16.—The annual meeting of the ratepayers of the Sooke school district was held in the Sooke Hall on Saturday evening.

The trustees' estimate of $2,300 for the coming year was voted. This is a reduction of $300 from last year. Cost of repairs were included in this sum, including the plastering of the old school and new fences. The work of repainting the school is also being considered. The salary of the principal will remain the same for another term with the understanding that third-year high school will be taught as previously.

Capt. James B. Gillatt of Saseenas was elected school trustee for a period of three years, replacing S. L. Shields, who has retired after six years on the board.

The auditor's report was read by C. A. Helgesen who was re-elected for another year.

Dr. E. Maude Robertson was appointed to attend the Sooke Superior School and the services of the district school nurse were discontinued.

BEAUTY PERIOD

Makeup Fades Fast

The camera has taught Kay Francis the importance of attention to details in personal matters.

By ALICIA HART

The perfectly groomed girl generally is a businesslike person to have around than one who neglects little personal details that make for daintiness.

This is true not only because the nicely turned out one looks more attractive but because she really feels better and has a sweeter disposition. If you doubt it, try to remember how slowly you felt the last time a shoulder strap snapped in two, or what your reactions were when you overslept and had to leave the house without makeup and a tidy coiffure. The chances are that your disposition was anything but charming on both occasions. On the other hand, if you look neat and know that you do, your good feeling about yourself is reflected in your personality.

Never leave the house without a clean handkerchief. If you wear white gloves, by all means be sure they are immaculate. It's better to go without any than to wear soiled ones. If you work in an office you will find that it is a good idea to keep a clean handkerchief and fresh gloves in the drawer with your makeup. Then, when you go directly from business to a five-thirty tea date, you'll be epic and span.

In addition, take time to remove make-up in the middle of the day and to replace it just as carefully as you applied the original coat in the morning. No matter how fine your cosmetics are, they won't stay on in good

Physical Supervisor Suggests Civilian Instructors at Normal Schools

"The military sergeant-majors who are at present teaching physical training in the Provincial Normal Schools here and in Vancouver, should be replaced by civilian instructors," said Maj. A. C. Hinton, director of physical education and cadet training in the city schools, in his address to the city clubmen at their weekly luncheon at the Empress Hotel yesterday.

Major Hinton claimed that the military instructors did not understand public school requirements along physical education lines. With this in view, he said, they should not be instructing teachers in training, who would eventually be taking their places in the various schools of the province.

The speaker said that there were a number of expert civilian instructors in Victoria and Vancouver who had had actual experience in the elementary schools and who would be better fitted to instruct Normal students along more suitable lines. Major Hinton spoke at length on the physical life of school children in Victoria, and traced their training from the primary grade to the high school.

"One has not to be too serious when dealing with children, especially children in the receiving grades," said the speaker. For this reason, Major Hinton invented a moveable cardboard figure which he named Jimmy, and used in his class demonstrations on posture.

The speaker also referred to the house system which he introduced into the schools three years ago, in order that every boy and girl attending an institution would be able to take some active part in the sports and games.

"It has been the rule in the past for a small majority to play on the two or three school teams in inter-school sports, leaving a vast number of children without any physical recreation whatsoever," said Major Hinton.

FOLK DANCING
The speaker went on to say how dancing had improved in the city schools during the last three years, and stated that last year something like 500 children took part in folk dancing in the various institutions. He said that there were more children dancing in the Victoria schools than in any other city in Canada.

"Singing games were proving very beneficial and entertaining to the primary children," said Major Hinton, who was instrumental in bringing this form of physical recreation to the fore. He spoke briefly about the mass drills which were put on for the half an hour every week by the various schools, and which formed one of the most colorful aspects of the physical training in the local educational centres.

"Cadet training is no longer under the control of the military authorities, but is governed by the school board and a committee of school cadets instructors," said Major Hinton. "The training is made progressive and interesting, featuring physical training, games, first aid and signalling."

"The physical drill display put on by the cadets at the jubilee pageant last June could not have been improved upon by any similar group of boys anywhere else in the world," stated the speaker.

During the last three years over 1,200 boys in the city schools had received their first-aid certificates, which would stand them in good stead in future years, stated Major Hinton.

The speaker then went on to trace physical education through the high school, where it was classed as a subject. Just as was history, and each pupil must receive or earn three credits before he or she passed out of a grade. He spoke of the development of the training in the high school, where the children conducted themselves under their own captains and vice-captains.

ANSWERS CRITIC

In closing, the speaker criticized the report that was circulated some days ago regarding the health and physical make-up of the children of Victoria. Major Hinton said that no children in the Dominion of Canada had as fine an opportunity to take part in physical training and games as do the school children of Victoria. He said that their health and physical condition was on a par with any similar group of children in the Dominion.

Major Oil Pool Sought in Alberta

Drilling of a well to prove that a commercial oilfield underlies the "Majestic" structure, at Taber, Alberta, is to be undertaken by Plains Petroleum Limited. This area has been the subject of many favorable reports by outstanding geologists and engineers who hold the opinion that an oilfield underlies the structure, and who have recommended the drilling of a well in the locality with its attendant prospects of developing crude oil in commercial quantities.

Campbell Hunter of London, England, formerly Professor of Geology, Birmingham University, Birmingham, England, and more recently associated with the Dutch Shell and Persian Oil Companies, and Dr. J. O. G. Sanderson, formerly with Imperial Oil Limited, and more recently associated in an advisory capacity to the Gas Conservation Board of the Province of Alberta, are geologists who have reported on the "Majestic" structure, and who have recommended the drilling of a well.

The area is about forty miles east of Lethbridge on the Crow's Nest branch of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and northeast of the Outbank Oilfield and Sunburst Oilfield in Montana, both large producing fields. Plains Petroleum Limited have secured leases on 5,120 acres on the "Majestic" structure. Exhaustive investigation, detailed geological work covering a considerable period of time and done by men of outstanding ability, together with correlation of logs of several wells drilled on the northern slope of the Sweet Grass Arch, on which the "Majestic" structure rests, which in many areas has been the cause of prolific oil wells, leads to the belief that the structure lends itself to the development of a major oil pool.

Plains Petroleum Limited has been incorporated under the laws of the Province of Ontario with an authorized capital of $500,000. Directors include men well known in the oil industry and in business circles in Canada and the United States, and others will be added at a later date.

Robert I. Clancy of Toronto, is president. Mr. Clancy has taken an active part in the development of Turner Valley. Directors include W. E. Allan of Fort Worth, Texas, who will direct field operations for the company; George M. Bell of Calgary, president Calgary Alberta Publishing Company Limited; H. C. Mills of Toronto, general manager for Canada, Insurance Company of North America, Indemnity Company of North America, Philadelphia Fire, etc.; W. George Wright of Toronto, director and general manager, John A. Huston Company Limited, director E. R. Squibbs & Sons of Canada Limited, Campena Corporation Limited, Marion Lambert Incorporated of Canada Limited, and James E. Whitney, 40 Wall Street, New York City.

MODEL OF MINE DRAWS INTEREST

Little & Taylor, Jewelers, Show Working Model of Premier Diamond Mine

Great interest is being shown in the fascinating working model of the Premier Diamond Mine now on display in the window of Little & Taylor, manufacturing jewelers, engravers and opticians, Bayward Building.

This mine, known as "the largest hole in the world," is located at Kimberley, South Africa.

Ingeniously constructed, the model depicts the mining of the hard blue earth in which the gems are found. The blue earth is taken in small cars to the fields above where it is spread out and allowed to lie undisturbed for six or eight months until disintegration of the soil is achieved. The town of Kimberley is pictured in miniature in the background of the model.

Surrounding the model are interesting reproductions of such world-famous gems as the Koh-i-Noor, the Great Mogul, Hope, Stewart and Cullinan diamonds. In the rough state, the latter stone weighed 3,076 carats. Display cards give the weight, value and present ownership of the famous diamonds shown in replica in the window.

"I shall not forget," he said quietly. He tried to rise then, but I had to assist him. "I shall be all right presently," he assured me, "after I have exercised a little. The effects of the targa's poison wear off in about twenty-four hours even without treatment. What you have done for me has helped to dissipate them sooner, and a little exercise will quickly eradicate the last vestiges of them." He stood looking about as though in an effort to orient himself, and as he did so his eyes fell upon his weapons, which I had intended burying with him and which lay on the ground beside the grave. "You are a long among friends!"

After he had buckled his sword belt about his hips, he picked up his spear and together we walked through the forest, searching for some sign that would indicate that we had reached a point beneath the city. Kamlot having explained that trees along the important trails leading to the location of the city were marked in an inconspicuous and secret manner, as were certain trees leading upward to the hanging city.

"We come to the surface of Ambar but seldom," he said, "though occasionally trading parties descend and go to the coast to meet vessels from the few nations with which we carry on a surreptitious commerce. The cure of Thorism has spread far, however, and there are few nations of which we have knowledge that are not subject to its cruel and selfish domination. Once in a while we descend to hunt the basto for his hide and flesh."

"What is a basto?" I inquired. "It is a large, omnivorous animal with powerful jaws armed with four great fangs in addition to its other teeth. On its head grow two heavy horns. At the shoulder it is as tall as a tall man. I have killed them that weighed thirty-six hundred lb."

A tob is the Amorian unit of weight, and is the equivalent of one-third of an English pound; all weights are computed in tobs or decimals thereof, as they use the decimal system exclusively in their tables of weights and measures. It seems to me much more practical than the confusing earthly collection of grains, grams, ounces, pounds, tons, and the other designations in common use among the various nations of our planet.

From Kamlot's description I visualized the basto as an enormous boar with horns, or a buffalo with the jaws and teeth of a carnivore, and judged that its twelve hundred pounds of weight would render it a most formidable beast. I asked him with what weapons they hunted the animal.

"Some prefer arrows, others spears," he explained, "and it is always handy to have a low branched tree near by," he added with a grin.

"They are bellicose," I asked. "Very. When a basto appears upon the scene, man is as often the hunted as the hunter, but we are not hunting bastos now. What I should most like to find is a sign that would tell me where we are."

We moved on through the forest, searching for the tiny round signs of the Vepajans, which Kamlot had described to me as explaining the location in which they are always placed. The sign consists of a long, sharp nail with a flat head bearing a number in relief. These nails are driven into trees at a uniform height from the ground. They are difficult to find, but it is necessary to have them so, lest the enemies of the Vepajans find and remove them, or utilize them in their search for the cities of the latter.

The method of the application of these signs to the requirements of the Vepajans is clever. They would really be of little value to any but a Vepajan as guide posts, yet each nail tells a remarkable story of the initiator; briefly it tells him precisely where he is on the island that comprises the kingdom of Mintep, the long. Each nail is placed in position by a surveying party and its exact location is indicated on a map of the island, together with the number on the head of the nail. Before a Vepajan is permitted to descend to the ground alone, or to lead others there, he must memorize the location of every sign nail in Vepaja. Kamlot had done so. He told me that if we could find but a single nail he would immediately know the direction of and distance to those on either side of it, our exact position upon the island, and the location of the city; but he admitted that we might wander a long time before we discovered a single nail.

The forest was monotonously changeless. There were trees of several species, some of which trailed the ground, others bare of branches for hundreds of feet from their bases. There were boles as smooth as glass and as straight as a ship's mast, without a single branch as far up as the eye could see. Kamlot told me that the foliage of these grew in a single enormous suit far up among the clouds.

I asked him if he had ever been up there, and he said he had climbed, he believed, to the top of the tallest tree, but that he had nearly frozen to death in the attempt. "We get our water supply from these trees," he remarked. "They drink in the water vapor among the clouds and carry it down to their roots. They are unlike any other tree. A central, porous core carries the water from the clouds to the roots, from whence it rises again in the form of sap that carries the trees upward from the ground. By tapping one of these trees anywhere you may obtain a copious supply of clear, cool water—a fortunate provision of—"

"Something is coming, Kamlot," I interrupted. "Do you hear it?"

"He listens intently for a moment. "Yes," he replied. "We had better take to a tree, at least until we see what it is."

As he climbed into the branches of a near-by tree, I followed him; and there we waited. Distinctly I could hear something moving through the forest as it approached us. The soft carpet of leaves beneath its feet gave forth but little sound—just a rustling of the dry leaves. Nearer and nearer it came, apparently moving leisurely; then, suddenly, its great head came into view from behind the bole of a tree a short distance from us.

CHAPTER XIX
"A basto," whispered Kamlot, but from his previous description of the beast I had already guessed its identity. It looked like a basto, only more so. From the eyes up its head resembled that of an American bison, with the same short, powerful horns. Its poll and forehead were covered with thick curly hair, its eyes were small and red rimmed. Its hide was blue and of about the same texture as that of an elephant, with sparsely growing hairs except upon the head and at the tip of the tail. It stood highest at the shoulders and sloped rapidly to its rump. Its fore legs were short and stocky and ended in broad, three-toed feet; its hind legs were longer and the hind feet smaller, a difference necessitated by the fact that the forelegs and feet carried fully three quarters of the beast's weight. Its muzzle was similar to that of a deer except that it was broader, and carried heavy, curved tusks.

"Here comes our next meal," remarked Kamlot in an ordinary tone of voice. "They are mighty good eating." Added Kamlot, "and we have not eaten for a long while. There is something like a basto steak grilled over a wood fire."

My mouth commenced to water. "Come on," I said, and started to climb down from the tree, my spear ready in my hand.

"Come back!" called Kamlot. "You don't know what you are doing. The basto had located us and was advancing, uttering a sound that would have put to shame the best efforts of a full-grown lion. I do not know whether to describe it as a bellow or a roar. It started with a series of grunts and then rose in volume until it shook the ground."

"It seems to be angry," I remarked; "but if we are going to eat him we must kill him first, and how are we to kill him if we remain in the tree?"

Sister MARY'S KITCHEN

By MARY E. DAGUB

If you have not sipped Swiss chard, do not let this summer go by without introducing it to your family. There are a variety of ways to cook it, and green curly leaves and others with broad light-colored leaves. Whatever the variety, my folks like the thick white midrib cooked and served like asparagus, and the leaf, used as greens equally well.

Chard rivals spinach in iron, so it is a good substitute for meat during hot weather. Besides, it is cheap and the vitamins are present in goodly amounts. Chard also supplements the protein deficiencies of other vegetables and cereal foods and contains a substance which enables the body to use all the mineral content.

USE LITTLE WATER
Cook in as little water as possible and for only a short time. Peg up with lemon juice and other seasonings that your family favors.

Many calories can be added to chard by dressing it with butter or a rich Hollandaise sauce.

The other day I had luncheon at a fashionable tearoom noted for its delicious and unusual foods. The cream of chard soup was excellent and was made like cream of spinach soup, adding the cooked and sifted vegetable to a thin cream sauce. I made it at home, seasoned with lemon juice and a suggestion of sage and onion.

An attractive way to serve chard is to cut the thick center rib in uniform lengths and tie in small bundles. Cook in boiling water, adding salt after the first ten minutes of cooking. Cook the thin part of the leaves just as you would spinach—in the water that clings to the leaves. When tender, chop leaves fine and arrange in a border on a deep serving platter. Garnish with hard cooked eggs and fill the centre with the thick ribs in Hollandaise sauce. This is an exceedingly nourishing and economical dish for a summer meal.

TENDER LEAVES FOR SALAD
The tender small leaves of chard can be used raw in salads and tastes like romaine.

If cooked in the stock in which ham was boiled, the flavor of the meat adds much to the taste of the dish.

With rich cheese sauce chard may be put into a shallow baking dish and the top browned in a hot oven before sending to the table.

TO-MORROW'S MENU
Breakfast—Baked sweet apples, cereal, cream, cinnamon toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Cream of chard soup, croquettes, jellied fruit salad, cheese sandwiches, Boston coolers.

Dinner—Salt-baked steak, mashed potatoes, chard with Hollandaise sauce, tomato and celery salad, blackberry pie, milk, coffee.

KNX SEEKING POWER RAISE

Only Clear Channel Independent Station in West Applies For 250,000 Watts

Application for a permit to construct and operate a 250,000-watt transmitter has been filed with the Federal Communications Commission by Guy C. Earl Jr., president, and Naylor Rogers, vice-president and manager of radio station KNX, Hollywood.

At a hearing before the commission in 1934 it was testified that approximately 4,500,000 watts, depending upon cleared channel stations for their radio reception. There are now but five high-powered cleared-channel stations in the fifth or western zone. Three release NBC programmes, one releases CBS programmes and the other, KNX, releases programmes especially designed to serve "the other half" with an hourly news service, agricultural service to growers, such as frost warnings and government pest control, together with entertainment keyed to the preferences of the great rural audience.

In going to 250,000 watts, KNX will extend its daytime coverage to some 150,000 radio homes now completely or partially deprived of day time radio service, and will give a night time reception of primary signal intensity throughout the entire western United States, western Canada and Alaska.

PIONEER IN WEST
One of the pioneers of western radio, (inaugurated as a 500-watt station in 1924), KNX has been fit to serve the vast back country audience and, in a recent survey by the Ross Federal Research Corporation, in 153 towns located throughout the eleven western states KNX programmes were found to enjoy one of the largest audiences of any station.

One of the features of the new KNX venture will be the construction of a duplicate single mast half-wave antenna to act as a signal reflector to intensify the signal which will be broadcast to the heavily populated north by compressing the signal that would ordinarily go "out to sea."

KNX has already launched its drive to improve the quality of its programme service for western listeners, and on August 1 it enters its new studios in Hollywood, representing the very latest in studio design in the United States.

The studios will occupy an entire building, formerly the motion picture Hall of Fame, and will be one of the show places of Hollywood in the heart of the motion picture studio district.

1,600 WOMEN AT CONCLAVE

"Unite For Effective Democracy" Theme of Huge Seattle Convention

Seattle, July 16.—"Women Unite for Effective Democracy" is the theme of the biennial convention of the U.S. Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, which opened in Seattle yesterday with 1,600 delegates in attendance.

The president, Mrs. Geline M. Bowman, representing 60,000 members throughout the United States, declared:

"For the first time in the history of America, gains that women have made since 1911 through long effort have been threatened. We are called upon to defend the occupational status of women."

"Thinking citizens realize that political forces, which would swing either to the extreme left or the extreme right the body politic of our country, would disastrously effect the status of women. We believe that women have a definite contribution to make to American life and that trends that would limit participation in any phase . . . are inimical to the progress and well-being of the nation."

Although the Olympic Hotel is convention headquarters, other leading hotels are teeming with visitors and all will have their share of social events.

Institutes of occupation held round-table talks yesterday, embracing the following occupations: Accounting and bookkeeping, home economics, insurance, motion pictures, music, ownership and management, social work, cosmetology, finance, general office positions, hotel and restaurant positions, legal profession, library work and personal and employment.

The principal speakers of the session will be Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, who will address the women at the magnificent Pacific banquet at the Civic Auditorium Thursday night.

Although the main convention closes Friday night a boat trip to Victoria, B.C., has been planned for the week-end, and some delegates will continue in a special party to Alaska.

MARRIAGE WILL BE ANNULLED

New York, July 16.—After conferring with attorneys for both sides, Justice Salvatore Cotillo announced he would grant an annulment of the marriage of Glendenn J. Ryan Jr. to the former Countess Marie-Anne von Wurmb-Ronsdorf of Vienna.

Ryan accused the countess of entering a conspiracy to obtain part of the $9,000,000 trust fund left to him by his grandfather.

Ryan and the countess were married in February, 1934, when she was nineteen years old.

Weddings

SCHOLZ-DRUMMOND

Of interest to the many local friends of the young couple is the following from yesterday's Seattle Post-Intelligencer:

"Candlelight and banks of delphinium, larkspur, peonies, roses and sweet peas created a charming setting for the marriage of Miss Vivian Pearl Drummond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theo J. Drummond, to Mr. Theodore Paul Scholz, son of Mr. A. W. Scholz of Adna, Wash., at the home of the bride's parents, the evening of June 24. Dr. M. E. Bollen performed the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was groomed in white satin, patterned on Princess Marina lines, the flare of the skirt falling into a long graceful train. She wore an imported wreath of hand-made flowers in her hair.

The affair was a most beautiful wedding, pink roses and white sweet peas.

"Miss Margaret Hemmingsen of Victoria, B.C., a cousin of the bride and her only attendant, wore a dress of shell-pink lace. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses, lavender larkspurs and pink snapdragons, tied in a large orchid bow.

"Mr. Raymond Royal was the bridegroom's best man.

Following the ceremony, Miss Ruth Marie Grisinger sang the Schubert "Benedictus" and "At Dawning." She was accompanied on the violin by Miss Elizabeth Waldo and Miss Beethia Tuttle at the piano.

"Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held. Mrs. Drummond wore delphinium, blue and white, and Miss Scholz wore a dress of black tulle with gold lace inserts. Their corsages were of pink roses, sweet peas and lavender.

"The bride's lace-covered table was illuminated by candles and decorated with pink roses and larkspur. A three-tiered wedding cake centered the table. Mrs. B. L. Hefler of Portland and Mrs. M. Hemmingsen of Victoria, B.C., poured, while the Misses Grace Kingsbury, Marie Hemmingsen, Margaret Lamiman, Annabelle Christiansen, Martha Scholz and Mrs. F. C. Medack assisted. Little Johannes Scholz presided at the cake.

"For her going-away costume the bride wore a white sweater suit with a turquoise boucle sweater, all white accessories, and a corsage of gardenias.

"Mrs. Scholz was graduated from the University of Washington in June. The couple are home to friends in Sedro Woolley.

Dean R. W. Brock, Vancouver, with Mr. Stanley Brock of Montreal and Mr. D. J. Hutchison, spent the week-end at the Forbidden Plateau Lodge. They were guided to the Mount Beecher Lookout by Gavin Wood and paid a visit to the wonderful but little known Medicine Bow. Mr. and Mrs. Walter of Victoria and Mrs. Evelyn Hayward of Shawinigan Lake also visited the Medicine Bow during their visit to the lodge.

Strathcott, Howard Sewell, Melvin Glaspeil, Tom Coventry, Miss M. E. Greenard and Miss A. M. Welsh, Victoria.

Miss Gladys Marchant, who has been closely associated with the Emmanuel Baptist Church for several years, was the guest of honor at a miscellaneous shower on Friday evening. The affair was held at the home of Miss Nellie Parfitt, 1313 Vining Street, and was attended by about thirty-five young ladies from the church. The many gifts were concealed in a prettily-decorated basket in rose petal effect, the color scheme being pink, green and blue, and was presented to the bride-elect by Little Eva Stewart, who was dressed in a pale green organdy frock and carried a Colonial bouquet of pink rose buds and fern. During the evening vocal solos were rendered by Miss May Zala and Mrs. George Eriksson, accompanied by Miss Winifred Scowcroft and Mrs. G. H. E. Green gave a group of piano solos. The delightful evening was brought to a close by the serving of refreshments.

A very enjoyable evening was spent in St. Martin's Hall, Obed Avenue, on Saturday, July 13, the occasion being the twenty-first birthday anniversary of Mr. C. H. Campion, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Campion, of Victoria. The evening was spent in cards and dancing; the dance music being supplied by Jerry Schofield's orchestra. JOBLESS GIRL HAS PLAINT

Government Does More For Men Than Women, She Says

Canadian Press
Toronto, July 16.—The viewpoint of the unemployed young girl is brought to the front in a letter from one of them to the local press, written from Hamilton Beach.

She thinks the unemployed men in relief camps have nothing to complain of and continues: "Perhaps a review of my case will show why I consider the young men of to-day lucky. I am a girl just twenty-one years old. I have taken my honor matriculation and a business course. My school record shows that I am fairly intelligent. Up to the present, however, I have never had a steady job, and I have worked only about two or three months in my life. That total was made up of odd periods when I worked in a store or refreshment booth.

"The government does not give me the chance of earning money in relief projects. Neither does it provide a place where I can earn my board, lodging and an allowance. The only kind of job I could get would be as a domestic servant.

"What prospect is in store for girls like me? The young men cannot afford to marry us. We do not want to be dependent upon our parents for the rest of our natural lives; industry cannot absorb us all. We would consider ourselves lucky to get 20 cents a day as the young men in relief camps do, and we would be more than glad of some occupation or recreation that would absorb our time and keep us from being discouraged.

"We accept our condition as one which is seemingly impossible to remedy, and which is not the fault of the government, for whatever has been blamed on Premier Bennett, no one can accuse him of causing or helping to further the depression. We would advise the young men to think this over."

Plan Social Meeting—Princess Patricia Lodge No. 238, will hold their next social meeting on Friday, July 19. After the meeting there will be a card game. All members are asked to bring refreshments.

DANISH HOST'S HUGE BANQUET

Sixteen Hundred Guests of Millionaire at London Feast

Canadian Press
London, July 16.—Sixteen hundred Danish people sat down to a supper of 200 Danish host-d'oeuvres given by a Danish millionaire recently. Einar Desau was host at the supper of the Anglo-Danish Society at Grosvenor House.

Danish food was brought from Denmark by airplane, guarded by two famous chefs from the most famous restaurant in Copenhagen. In Denmark the list of hors d'oeuvres in any first-class restaurant is nearly two yards long. The colors of the rainbow appeared before the guests. Grey fish with tails in their mouths, white fish laid flat; red strips of salted meat, sprinkled with pepper; green ovals of stuffed olives; piles of green salad, with a blue mist of Danish dressing all appeared.

The flavor bitterness is a secret which the Danes alone hold. Each course was served with Danish bread spread thickly with butter, and accompanied by Danish beer.

MUSIC EXAMS ARE VALUABLE

Says Egerton Lowe of London at Teachers' Federation Picnic

A very happy gathering of members of the Victoria branch of the B.C. Music Teachers' Federation and their friends held their annual picnic at the Japanese Tea Gardens last night.

The guest speaker was Mr. Egerton Lowe of Trinity College, London. Mr. Lowe gave a brief history of his musical studies from a choir boy of eight years, on through his student days and Leipzig Conservatory and the various outstanding teachers and musicians connected with same.

In a brief reference to "memorization" he stated several big artists have been using their score on the concert platform lately.

Mr. Lowe strongly supports the idea of examinations, saying they have been the means of raising the standard of music considerably the last twenty years. He has examined over 75,000 candidates; has sent over 1,000 of his own pupils up for exams. He never finds examining tedious, nor monotonous, he says.

Mr. Lowe took his listeners to the various places he has examined in South Africa, Australia, India, New Zealand and Canada, giving some interesting and picturesque insights into each.

A very hearty vote of thanks was given to the speaker by Mr. George Dyke and to Mrs. McCoy Jameson by Mr. Reg. Cox.

Those present were: Reg. Cox, Egerton Lowe, Miss May James (Vancouver), George Dyke, Mrs. N. J. Cole, Mrs. C. H. Hunt (Vancouver), Mrs. S. Charles (Burnaby, B.C.), Virginia Chatter, North Sherwood, Enid Cole-Gurney, Major J. A. P. Crompton, Nellie Sowerby, Mrs. J. Burnett, Marjorie Tebo, Jean Burnett, Phyllis Burnett, Frederick Highfield, Beatrice Griffin, Mrs. G. Marshall, Horace Culver, Miss Dorothy Francis, Jennie Wilkinson, Helen Winn, Mrs. M. McGovern, Oliver Stout, Mrs. E. James (Vancouver), Mrs. M. M. Sims (Vancouver), Mrs. E. Fielding, Mrs. Ogretta McNeill, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Jameson, Jennings Burnett and F. C. Wickett.

Twelve Years On Church Banner

Canadian Press
Regina, July 16.—Eye-straining work over a period of twelve years, bringing partial blindness to one woman, is embodied in the silk banner dedicated by Most Rev. M. N. Harding, Archbishop of Rupertsland, in St. Chad's Chapel here.

The silk work introduces all legends connected with St. Chad, monk and bishop. The banner was presented to the diocese of Qu'Appelle by the Qu'Appelle Association in England as an offering on the occasion of the jubilee of the diocese.

The work was conceived by Mrs. E. Barratt of Bristol, England, and her eyesight weakened under the strain. She was aided in the twelve-year task by two other women.

WOMEN POWER IN POLITICS

U.S. Business Clubs Makes
Survey of Number of State
Offices

Associated Press
Seattle, July 16.—"Both political parties are beginning to realize women's power," Mrs. Colina MacDonald Bowman, president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, reported last evening in what was described as the first comprehensive survey of the number of women elected and appointed to office in state governments. The first formal session will be held tonight.

Of the forty-two states reporting to a federation questionnaire last month, Mrs. Bowman said, Georgia leads with fifty-four women elected to public office and Maryland leads with 108 appointed to public office.

Colorado is second in the number of elective women officials with fifty-three. Florida has thirty-eight, Arkansas and Ohio thirty-five each, and New York twenty-seven.

New York is second in appointive women officials with 108. California has sixty-one, Ohio fifty-five, and Virginia forty-nine.

Mrs. Bowman said her figures do not include civil service appointees.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Because the baby's reactions toward a canned milk can be determined before a journey is begun, it seems sensible to use this type of milk when traveling. Canned milks are easy to digest, can be opened just at feeding time—thus doing away with the necessity for ice—and are uniform everywhere. The most suitable types of canned milks are the unsweetened evaporated milks and dried, or powdered, milks.

If baby is on whole milk the process of diluting the milk is usually simple, as the printed directions on the can give the dilution which approximates whole milk in nutritional content. Water and sugar can be added according to the individual formula.

BABY'S DIET
Mrs. A. M. R. writes: "I would like to ask you a few questions about my ten-month-old daughter who weighs twenty-two and one-half pounds. She weighed only five at birth. Here is the schedule I am following:
"8 a.m.—8 ounces whole milk.
"10 a.m.—3 tablespoons cereal, 8 ounces milk.
"2 p.m.—2 ounces vegetable pulp and baked custard, or the pulp and hard-cooked egg. Then 8 ounces milk.
"NO COD LIVER OIL.

"Glass of orange juice or tomato juice in middle of afternoon.
"6 p.m.—2 tablespoon cereal, or cracker or sweetback, with 8 ounces milk.
"Cod liver oil does not agree with her, so it is being omitted. I plan a short trip this summer. What shall I use in place of dairy milk? She is so young, and so heavy, will standing up hurt her?"

Your diet is excellent, but keep the 2 p.m. meal uniform. When you give vegetable pulp, followed by custard, subtract the milk for the custard from the eight ounces given to drink. Small custards like this can be steamed in custard cups on top of the stove. The other combination is all right.

Perhaps your doctor can suggest some other form of vitamin D which the baby will not dislike or be upset by.

Our leaflet, "Necessities for a Comfortable Journey," may be had for a self-addressed and stamped envelope sent to this department with your request for it.

While baby should not be allowed to overdo the new activity of standing up, the fact that she can do this indicates that despite her weight she is ready for it.

To-morrow—"Baby Chews First When Overfed As Well As When Hungry."

ROEDEAN HAS ITS JUBILEE

Old Girls From All Parts of World to Visit Famous
English School

Canadian Press
London, July 16.—From almost every corner of the world women are traveling to England to participate in the Jubilee of Roedean—perhaps the most famous school for girls in England.

Fifty years ago Lord Justice Lawrence, then a young barrister, loaned his eldest sister, Penelope, £250 to start a girls' school.

She rented a house in Lewes Crescent, Brighton, and, in July, 1885, opened it as an academy in which girls could be trained to independence and self-reliance, and given "as much liberty as could be granted with safety."

Among the "old girls" who will attend the jubilee there may be some who spent their school days in the modest house in Lewes Crescent.

In its place this summer they will find Roedean on the height of the cliffs between Brighton and Rottingdean, with rolling acres of playfields, cloisters and its chapel. Its forty teachers and pupils drawn from the most famous families in England.

The celebrations will begin on Friday, July 26. At least 1,000 people are expected to come to the school during that time.

Lord Justice Lawrence will be there, and so will his sister, Miss Theresa Lawrence, who founded a second Roedean in South Africa, and who is now on holiday in England. Princess Alice, Countess of Athlone, will distribute the prizes.

Fathers of pupils at the school will play their daughters' in a cricket match on Roedean's playing field. There will be a jubilee dinner in Brighton, and at 11 a.m. on Sunday a jubilee thanksgiving service will be held at the school.

Miss Penelope Lawrence died three years ago at the age of seventy-five. Her sisters, Dorothy and Millicent, who helped her to found the school and build its fortunes, are also dead.

FILM BEAUTY ENDS HER LIFE

Julia Graham, After Sensational Career, Shoots Herself in Man's Apartment

Associated Press
Los Angeles, July 16.—The brief but sensational career of beautiful young Julia Graham, former Sisterville, W. Va., choir singer who crashed the movies by twice attempting suicide, was ended by death last night.

The tall, slender brunette beauty, unclad, was found by police early to-day, a bullet hole in her left temple. She was in the apartment of Benjamin F. Reynolds, film cameraman. Authorities said Reynolds is married and that his wife is visiting in the east.

Detective Lieut. H. A. Spencer of the university police said Reynolds told him that Miss Graham committed suicide with one of his pistols. He said he took her to his apartment because she was "too drunk" to go to the Studio Club, where she resided.

On March 2, 1934, Miss Graham, dependent because of her inability to break into pictures, swallowed poison. She wrote a note saying she was tired of living and hated life. On September 27 she tried to end her life by poison again.

Earl Carroll, New York stage producer, who came here to produce a movie, read of her despondency and arranged a screen test for her. She passed it and had since played several hit parts. She appeared in "Murder at the Vanities."

Lieut. Spencer said Reynolds told him that he and Miss Graham went to Santa Catalina Island last Saturday, registered at a hotel under an assumed name. They returned to Los Angeles last night.

"Miss Graham was drinking a good deal," Spencer quoted Reynolds as saying. "She seemed to be in good humor. She had $15 of her own money. When I told her I didn't want any more to drink, she went down to the bar to get some more for herself."

"At Wilmington we took a bus to drive to Santa Monica, where I had left my auto. On the way there Miss Graham began to worry about getting to her studio by 7:30 a.m. She was working in a picture. She said she was in no condition to go to her club and asked me if I could put her up at home."

PARTIES PRELUDE TO DIVORCE SUITS

Associated Press
Hollywood, Cal., July 16.—A sudden surge of friendship between a Hollywood husband and wife these days is frequently the surest sign of an impending divorce.

The "honeypot party" has become fashionable.

Thus, it was no surprise to movie colony observers recently when they heard of the separation of Adrienne Ames and Bruce Cabot, on a Saturday afternoon, saw them dancing together that night and swimming the next day—and read of her suit for divorce on Monday.

So, too, with William Powell and Carole Lombard, who were never more attentive to each other than during the round of parties they visited in the week before their divorce.

Members of the W.A. and friends are reminded of the garden party to be held to-morrow in the lovely Up-

MAGIC IN FEW BITS OF GLASS

J. Duff Gives Talk on Telescope to Astronomical Society

The magic in a few small bits of glass which brought the heavens hundreds of times closer to the earth was unfolded in a lecture on "The Construction of a Telescope," by J. Duff of Sidney, to members of the Victoria branch of the Royal Astronomical Society yesterday evening. The talk was one of the Summer Evenings with the Stars series put on by the society this year, and was held in the Victoria College.

A lens, Mr. Duff said in discussing refracting telescopes, brought rays of light to a point, and it was marvelous how these convex pieces of glass could marshal the millions of rays into their proper positions. The image made by a lens corresponded point by point with the object, but was upside down.

The focal point of the lens depended upon its thickness. A thick lens, however, gave a small image, and a flat lens gave a large image. "Believe it or not," Mr. Duff declared, "I have a lens which I made out of the windshield of a Ford car which is more powerful than any of the reflectors they have at the Observatory. My lens has a focal length of fifty-seven feet, and I can get an image of the sun as big as a dish. I can see the spots on the sun, though they are by no means perfect. Mr. Duff went on to show how a magnification of 2,500 times could be obtained with a twelve-inch lens. This was based on the fact that area counted, not width, and the pupil of the eye was usually a quarter of an inch in the dark.

BREAKS UP LIGHT
The difficulty with a simple telescope was that a lens not only refracted light but also broke it up into different colors as in the case of a prism. This obstacle stumped a number of great scientists, including Newton, who was so baffled by it that he turned to the reflecting telescope. However, an amateur astronomer in England by the name of Hales solved the problem. He found out that there were two types of glass, crown and flint glass, which had different refractive powers. By setting them against each other he could neutralize their effect. This was known as an achromatic combination.

A stick could be used to hold the lens and the eyepiece of the telescope, the lecturer said, but it was found that a hollow tube painted black inside was best as it excluded all unwanted light. The vertical stand with a two-way motion was the first construction a telescope was mounted on, but it was a nuisance in following rapidly moving bodies in the heaven. In its place was generally substituted a pedestal with a double axis, one to follow the heavenly body and the other to find it.

REFLECTING TELESCOPE
Mr. Duff touched briefly on the reflecting telescope and showed how the concave mirror acted in much the same manner as the convex lens in converging light rays. Before the main speaker, Miss P. Riddle, B.A., gave a five-minute description on the method of finding stars by the local system.

In the absence of the president, H. T. Bryden, due to illness, Commander H. R. Tingley, vice-president, occupied the chair. After the meeting the members went outside to watch the shadow of the earth move off the moon, and also to view the heavens through the reflecting and refracting telescopes of

DATE SET FOR SUMMER SHOW

Victoria Horticultural Society Event July 26 and 27

The twelfth annual summer show of the Victoria Horticultural Society will be held on Friday and Saturday, July 26 and 27.

By the courtesy of the B.C. Agricultural Association it will again be staged in the main building at the Willows. The show, to meet the requirements of a number of exhibitors, will be held one week later than originally intended. The prize list which has been issued by the society has been revised and in the floral section many changes have been made.

With the view of encouraging artistic arrangement as well as that of producing a show of high quality, the executive are introducing three new sections, chiefly comprising color schemes or harmonies, and at the same time making it possible for even the smallest grower to make some entry.

A number of classes have also been included for those exhibiting for the first time.

Prize lists can be obtained at all downtown floral stores, or will be mailed on phoning the secretary, F. E. Boulter, 538 Obed Avenue, E 8490.

FINE AWARDS ARE SECURED

Handsome Trophies Await Competitors in Police Revolver Meet Next Week

The finest array of silverware ever to be competed for this year is awaiting winners in the annual Victoria police revolver competition, to be staged at Heals Range next Tuesday and Wednesday.

The committee in charge this year has been fortunate in securing a number of splendid pieces of silver, including table decorations and flat silver, in addition to several excellent cups.

The feature trophy, the Mayor and Council Cup, for high aggregate score among city police officers, will be defended by Constable A. H. Phipps, who is anticipating some keen competition. Detective Jack H. Rogers, winner of the trophy in 1933, will be gunning after his colleague, while not far away will be Detective Inspector J. A. McLeish, who has turned in some stellar work in team contests during the winter.

In addition there are several other members of the department who have done well this year and it is possible from among these may come the aggregate winner in the same manner in which Constable Phipps came last year.

TEAM AWARDS
Among the team trophies are also some splendid pieces of silverware and nearly all instances there are medals or individual cups to be given members of the teams.

The McLennan, McPeck and Prior Cup will be awarded the winning team in the running man event, while in the individual team match competition will be for the Colonel trophy. Teams from Vancouver Island police departments are eligible for the Alderman J. D. Hunter Cup, while teams drawn from all parts of the province will shoot for the Mrs. Selden Humphreys Cup.

P. W. Francis, jeweler, donated the cup for the ladies' perpetual challenge match, a deliberate shooting competition.

The final date for entries was yesterday and Secretary W. Ostler reported a splendid list of competitors from local and outside points. The civilian entry list is high this year compared with former years and some good marksmanship in the events set aside for the laymen will not be surprising.

EARTH TURNED FOR NEW CLUB
Formal Start Made on New $35,000 Army and Navy Veterans' Quarters

A formal start on the new quarters of the Army and Navy Veterans, Victoria Unit No. 12, was made yesterday when James Scarfe, president of the organization, turned the first spadeful of earth for the building which will be constructed at a cost of $35,000.

The new building will be three stories high, will include a large rotunda, refreshment bars, billiard rooms, a bowling alley, modern library, offices, a ballroom and theatre. It will rise on the northeast corner of Wharf and Broughton streets opposite the Marine Building site.

The work will be done by David W. Burnett on plans prepared by Eric Clarkson. At the ceremony yesterday Mr. Scarfe spoke of the need for larger quarters and Captain C. P. L. Money, secretary, outlined the circumstances which had led to the decision to build. The hope was expressed one of the Dominion Command executive officers would come from the east to lay the cornerstone during the latter part of August.

The building is expected to be opened in December.

Winch Handle Kills Workman

George Jones, Sixty-seven, Fatally Injured Hauling Logs at Esquimalt

George Jones, sixty-seven-year-old caretaker of the Esquimalt Hotel, was killed early yesterday evening when struck by the revolving handle of a winch on which he had been working at Constance Cove.

Sidney O. Smith, 484 Crittall Street, aged twenty-six years, who was assisting in the work, suffered a compound fracture of the right arm, a broken hand and several lacerations.

Mr. Smith was this morning reported at the St. Joseph's Hospital as having had a fairly comfortable night.

Esquimalt police reported the accident occurred at 6:15 o'clock while the two men were engaged in taking logs out of the cove. They were hauling on one large log when it slipped toward the sea, carrying the cable with it and causing the winch handle to reverse at high speed.

The jar threw both men off balance and the handle struck Mr. Jones before he could change his position. Mr. Smith had been lending the elderly man assistance and was not regularly employed on the work.

He was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital by Thomas J. Brundson, proprietor of the Esquimalt Hotel. Dr. W. J. Endicott was summoned after the accident and pronounced the aged man dead. The remains were removed to Carter's Funeral Home where an inquest will probably be held tomorrow.

LOVELOCK IN TITLE DEFEAT

London, July 16.—Jack Lovelock, New Zealand's great miller, was beaten at his specialty Saturday by an English club runner, Stanley Wooderson, unknown outside his native land.

Meeting the New Zealander in the eight-furlong race of the British A.A. championships at White City, Wooderson outspurred Lovelock at the finish to win by ten feet in four minutes 17.4 seconds.

Lovelock, who has been clocked in 4.07.5 for the distance, and recently whipped Glenn Cunningham, American racer, in the Princeton (N.J.) invitation meet, rallied himself off the early pace as usual.

SPRINT FAHLS
Wooderson moved into the lead and held it until they were 200 yards from the finish line. Here Lovelock, whose finishing kick is feared by all rivals, elected to make his bid. He drew even with Wooderson and they ran neck and neck for 400 yards until the club runner pulled away to win.

Two British records fell during the day, but they were credited to two invaders. Keith Brown, Yale, and Harold Anderson, Sweden. Brown cleared the bar at 13 feet 10 inches in the pole vault to better the old record of 13 feet 9 inches, set by another American, Lee Barnes, Southern California, in 1929. Brown might have improved even further on the record had he not decided to stand on his 18-10 vault.

Anderson, world record holder in the event, tossed the discus 109 feet 11 1/2 inches, to set a new British standard for that event, but exactly two feet short of the world mark.

FOREIGNERS WIN
Four other events went to foreigners, as L. Atterwall, Sweden, won the javelin throw at 215 feet 6 1/2 inches. A. G. T. De Bruyn, Holland, won the shot put at 48 feet 9 1/2 inches. R. Paul, France, captured the broad jump at 28 feet 10 1/2 inches, and M. B. Oendarp, Holland, won the 200-yard dash in 22.2 seconds.

HOME RUN PARADE
Joe Medwick and Bill Terry, the only members of baseball's Big Six to see action yesterday, took advantage of the opportunity to close in on the leaders. The slugging St. Louis Cardinals outfielder drove out three hits in four trips to the plate for a gain of five points, while the New York Giants' manager, connected three times in five trips at bat for an increase of four points. As the result Medwick ended the day with an average of .734 and Terry with .350.

Formal Start Made on New $35,000 Army and Navy Veterans' Quarters

A formal start on the new quarters of the Army and Navy Veterans, Victoria Unit No. 12, was made yesterday when James Scarfe, president of the organization, turned the first spadeful of earth for the building which will be constructed at a cost of $35,000.

England and South Africa Draw In Third Test Cricket Match

THE SPORTS MIRROR

SONNY Workman considers the class of running horses on North American tracks to-day the poorest in years. The son of the famous English sire, the only three stand out in the pack—Discovery, Omaha and King Saxon. He adds that Cavalade and To-day have tremendous potentialities if they can be brought to top form. He points out that the others beat one another with monotonous regularity.

Workman ought to know what he is talking about, for even during the last years of the spectacular Earl Sande, Sonny was considered tops at the riding-stables. The little man from Washington began riding for Harry Payne Whitney in 1924, and since that time has ridden steadily, first for that late-lamented sportsman, and since for C. V. Whitney. So even if he were not the greatest of American jockeys, he at least has more than ten years of riding for the finest racing stable in America.

Through those years Workman's slight legs have hugged the withers of many of the turf's immortals: Whirlwind, Bowjum, the marvelous Top Flight, Equipoise, and numerous others.

Workman opines that Discovery is a truly great horse. Despite the injury which put him on the shelf last autumn, the big chestnut has come back in marvelous form.

"Of course," asserts Sonny, "the horse started slowly this year, requiring half a dozen races to get into his best form, but his Brooklyn Handicap victory was a smashing triumph. He broke the world record for the distance, by about ten lengths. Johnny said that Discovery ran in such effortless fashion that he had no idea his mount was going anywhere near that fast."

"Omaha is by all odds the best of the three-year-olds, but that isn't saying too much. Omaha is no Equipoise or Cavalade, but he has taken off both quarters in dismounting Johnny Gilbert in the Suburban, but if he comes back in good shape he'll be tough to beat."

With the season approaching its noontime for the year, with Arlington Park well started and Saratoga coming up in August, it may well be said that the class of horses racing in America has seldom been so poor.

Whether this is due to mass production—the number of horses racing has been at a dizzy increasing—whether it is due to breeding for speed, or whether it is due to some normal period of depression or cyclic change, it is not known. The facts, however, prove the point.

Starting with the racing season, a referee-made steeples which had never shown a liking for distance, won the rich Santa Anita Handicap. This race made him look like a slasher, since he best Ladyman, Head Play, Top Row, Ted Clark, Equipoise, Twenty Grand, Male, Goo, etc.

However, Equipoise had reached that period when he staggered after a mile. Twenty and Male were even worse. Gusto got nowhere before and hasn't since. Ladyman never was of true high class, and Top Row and Ted Clark never were more than sprinters. And to top it off, Anzac has been beaten regularly since.

Omaha won the Kentucky Derby, Preakness, Belmont and Dwyer and the list made him look like a champion, even though he beat nothing much in the Derby. It took his life to beat Preakness in the Belmont Stakes, and he was beaten in the Wood Memorial and Withers Stakes.

Omaha was asked to show his real worth in the Brooklyn Handicap, in which he met other horses and was a favorite. Based on the scale, he got a pound from King Saxon and gave Discovery three. Now since he had previously won the Belmont and later won the Dwyer, there is no question but that Omaha was ready.

Yet Omaha got a ten-length beating in the Brooklyn. Discovery beat King Saxon by eight. The King was badly injured in the running, and in any event is known to be no great shakes over a mile.

The filly Black Helen is indeed a good one. But her record does not make her outstanding. Her stablemate, Bloodroot, had to be pulled out of her win in the Coaching Club American Oaks.

Touring Eleven Stalls To Force Second Stalemate

South Africa Representatives Play For Time To Rob England of Victory

HAMMOND PUTS ON SPLENDID 87

Canadian Press

Leeds, Eng., July 17.—After victory appeared in England's grasp, the third test cricket match with South Africa ended in a draw to-day.

Tactics of the South Africans in playing for time was successful, the score at the end of day's final play being 194 runs for five wickets. In its first innings Monday the South Africans made 171. England scored 216 in its first Saturday, and to-day declared the second innings closed at 204 for seven.

To-day's draw left South Africans leading the test series, as they won the second at Lord's. The first at Nottingham was drawn. Two remain to be played.

Down 339 runs at the start of the second innings, the Springboks stalled the English bowling and refused to give chances to the Old Country's field.

APPEAL FOR HALT

A feature of the South Africans' fight for time was the successful appeal for stopping play due to poor light. Tea, however, was taken during the interval for the skies to brighten.

Bruce Mitchell's innings of fifty-eight was a hot spot for South Africa. For two and three-quarter hours at the wicket he scored fifty-eight runs, among them seven fours.

The 120-run fourth wicket partnership of Wally Hammond and E. E. S. Wyatt was an outstanding feature of the second innings of England. Going to bat yesterday, Hammond and Wyatt started at the 177-run mark to-day, and put on a century in an hour. Wyatt was caught at forty-four in the slips by Cyril Vincent, but Hammond continued on and was not out with eighty-seven. On Monday Denis Smith and Arthur Mitchell in a first wicket partnership put on 121. Mitchell scored seventy-two and Smith fifty-seven in the first innings.

BELL BEST BOWLER

Alan Bell had the best of the South African bowling attack, taking three wickets for thirty-eight runs. Vincent took four for 194 in addition to catching Wyatt.

While the weather was dull and threatening the wicket was still in good shape. In the first four overs only one run was scored. Later Hammond and Wyatt opened up. R. J. Crisp yielded twenty-four runs in three overs.

On the next ball after Wyatt was caught by Vincent, Hardesty was bowled by Bell for a duck. Ames's stumps were wrecked by one of Bell's inswinging deliveries after the Kent wicketkeeper scored thirteen runs. Vincent bowled Nichols for the seventh wicket and the innings was declared closed.

K. J. Siedle and Bruce Mitchell opened for South Africa. At lunch the score was thirty-three runs for the loss of no wickets, Siedle contributing ten and Mitchell twenty-two.

BRILLIANT CATCH

In forty-five minutes the fifty went up and three runs later Hammond made a brilliant left-handed catch of Siedle in the slips off W. E. Bowes. It was Bowes's 100th wicket of the season and he celebrated eight runs later by bowling E. A. B. Rowan, South Africa's star in the first innings. Siedle scored twenty-one and Rowan had five when Bowes got to him.

Kenneth Viljoen joined Mitchell and played safely. Wyatt changed the English field when Viljoen faced the bowling of Bowes. Mitchell executed well-placed strokes. J. M. Sims bowled Viljoen at nine, the third wicket falling for ninety-one.

Mitchell and Viljoen scored slowly, putting on thirty runs in sixty-five minutes. Viljoen made seven in forty. (Turn to Page 15, Col 3)

TORNADOES
TRAVEL 40 TO 50 MILES
AN HOUR... YET
THE WIND IN THEM TRAVELS
400 TO 500
MILES AN HOUR!

The wind in a tornado, whirling along with an almost unbelievable power to destroy, travels at a speed no man-made machine has ever been able to measure. Meteorologists estimate that wind velocities of 400 to 500 miles per hour are common in tornadoes—but instruments will not stand up under the terrific strain. Yet, strange as it seems, the storm itself travels comparatively slow—about forty to fifty miles an hour on the average.

No storm is more violent than the tornado. About 100 such storms occur with varying toll of life and property annually in the United States, generally confined to the central Mississippi Valley. Typical tornado weather is hot and humid. Cold air over a lower hot layer sets up an unstable condition in the atmosphere which results in the warm air being displaced. It rises with a rotary motion due to the inrush of cold air from outlying areas. The storm may measure hundreds of miles across, but the centre is the destructive element. Here the typical funnel-shaped cloud is formed.

Borne along by ocean currents, a bottle dropped overboard off Benguela on the west coast of Africa in mid-October last year, was picked up 1500 miles away on the banks of the Jaboato River, Brazil, on March 22, this year. The bottle had been in the water just a little more than five months, traveling about ten miles per day.

Cincinnati Reds Break Long Jinx

Butler-Dickinson Going to Henley

Canadian Press

Vancouver, July 16.—Monte Butler and John Dickinson of the Vancouver Rowing Club yesterday evening were named British Columbia representatives to the Canadian Henley to be held at Port Dalhousie, Ont., July 25, 26 and 27.

Butler and Dickinson will enter both the junior and senior 140-pound, singles and doubles events. They leave here to-morrow en route east.

The bush safari of Cincinnati Reds has produced some mighty fine ivory.

Out of minor league clubs here and there the Reds have brought in baseball material that has been well fashioned and some of the other teams are wondering what is going to happen when these fledglings have become thoroughly seasoned.

Yesterday Reds shook off the four-year jinx of Hal Schumacher, and trimmed the league—leading New York Giants 13 to 6. It was the sixth straight victory for the Reds.

But the worst is yet to come, the Reds say. Out in the deep tangled wilderness they have strings on some other ball players who are destined to shine on the Cincinnati roster.

Schumacher had beaten the Reds fourteen times and tied them once since May 19, 1933, before yesterday's uprising. The defeat cut the Giants' lead to five games over the rushing St. Louis Cardinals, who turned back the buffeted Boston Braves for their eleventh successive victory.

EIGHT STRAIGHT

Chicago Cubs ran their victory string up to eight straight when they took a ten-inning encounter with the Phillies. Billy Herman's line double with two out sent Augie Galan home with the run that gave them a 2 to 1 verdict.

Cards won by the lopsided score of 13 to 4 in the first of their four game series. Dizzy Dean allowed fourteen hits, but his mates collected eighteen safe blows to give the Dizzy one his fifteenth triumph of the season. Durocher belted two homers and Joe Medwick got a third.

In the lone American League game played yesterday St. Louis Browns defeated Washington Senators 3 to 2, the margin of victory being provided by Lyn Lary in the eleventh inning.

Newark, N.J., July 16.—Jack Doyle, handsome Irish heavyweight, scored a four-round knockout yesterday evening over Jack Redmond, Indianapolis negro, in his second United States ring appearance.

He fell through the ropes when the end came and was counted out as he lay in the laps of ring-side spectators. Doyle weighed 200, Redmond 183½. The bout was scheduled for six rounds.

Canadians High In Feature At Bisley

Lt. James Boa, Lt. Neal Dow and Q.M.S. Alex. Parnell Score 68 Out of 70 In St. George's Challenge Vase at Empire Rifle Meet

Bisley Camp, Eng., July 16.—Canadians were again below the top in to-day's principal match at Bisley, the St. George's Challenge Vase.

The three leading Canadians—Lieut. James Boa, Montreal, Lieut. Neal Dow, Saint John and Q.M.S. Alex. Parnell, Verdun, Quebec, posted totals of 68 out of a possible 70.

Lieut. Lacey Stevens, former Indian Agent and now a London dentist, posted a perfect score of 70 to take the bronze cross for best score in the first stage. Armourer-Sergt. Purves, formerly Ordnance Corps, was second with 69.

Six Canadians gained the right to enter the final stage Saturday, limited to the best 100 scorers to-day, including Boa, Dow and Parnell, and Cpl. E. E. Wright, Montreal, Lieut. P. J. Martinson, La Toque, and Capt. A. W. Hunt, Winnipeg.

Three other Canadians will shoot off with seventy-seven other entrants, all having scores of sixty-six, for eight remaining places in the final stage.

PERFECT SCORES

Two Canadians had perfect scores at the first distance of the first stage of the match, one of the most important at Bisley, but at least forty-eight others also had highest possible scores.

The first stage was fired at 300 and 600 yards, seven shots each distance, the 100 highest scorers go into the second stage Saturday, fifteen shots at 300 yards. To-day's scores served only to qualify and will not count in the final. In addition to a Challenge Vase, Gold Cross, and Dragon Cup, the (Turn to Page 15, Col 4)

EAGLES WIN BALL CLASH

After holding their opponents to a 1 to 1 score until the beginning of the fifth inning, Tillamucks wilted badly to allow the Eagles to score four runs and win the Commercial Baseball League fixture at the Athletic Park yesterday evening by an 8 to 3 score.

With the exception of the disastrous fifth, the game was well contested, and there was little to choose between the two squads.

Osman opened on the mound for the Tillamucks, with Holmes completing the battery. This combination worked well for the first four innings, with the exception of the second, when Eagles scored a lone run to tie the score at 1 to 1, after the Tillamucks had scored once off Proudlowe in the first inning.

The Eagles broke loose in the fifth and Osman ran into a heap of trouble. Jimmy Patterson's triple to deep left field with the bases loaded spelled curtains for Osman, who was replaced by Lloyd Jones, who managed to retire the side with the Eagles out in front 5 to 1. The clubmen managed to get one run back in their half of the fifth to make it 5 to 2.

PLAYER BANNISHED

Taking exception to one of Umpire Barnes's decisions, Tillamucks threatened to break up the game with a free-for-all in the sixth. Stipe was called out as he was coming home, but the clubmen figured he was safe, and to prove it they shouted their heads off and pushed everybody, and the umpire in particular, with reckless abandon. At the conclusion of the squabble, Stipe was still called out, and Roy Robinson was banished from the game.

The Tillamucks never settled down to play ball after the miniature riot, and the Eagles went on to score another run in the sixth and two more in the seventh.

Score by innings:
Tillamucks 1 0 0 1 0 1 0—3
Eagles 0 1 0 0 4 1 2—8
Batteries—Osman, Jones and Holmes; Proudlowe and Woodford.

SOLUTION FOR WORLD UNREST

English Speaking People Must Co-operate, Says Dr. Gordon

Had the United States of America been side by side with Great Britain in the League of Nations there would not be the feeling of unrest as exists in Europe today, stated Rev. C. W. Gordon (Ralph Connor), famous lecturer, author, educationist and minister, in the course of a lecture yesterday evening at the Metropolitan United Church.

His subject was "The Function of the English-speaking Race in This New World."

The greatest standing influence in the world today was Great Britain, the speaker said. If the British government were to do its best for humanity, it must have the complete co-operation of those powers that bridge the British Empire, along with the co-operation of the sister nation to the south.

The influence of the English-speaking race on the rest of the world was tremendous, according to the opinion of Dr. Gordon.

"This new world in which we find ourselves today started in 1914," said the speaker. "In 1918, after passing through the most ghastly, most cruel and most useless war in history, the peoples and governments of the world found that the old world was a thing of the past, and that a new international consciousness or a new integration of nations confronted them," said Dr. Gordon. "Today we all live in absolute and immediate contact with other nations of the world, and are continually aware of these nations more than ever before."

This integration had been brought about by the immense improvement in communication and transportation since the war. The result of all this was that the common interests of society were being emphasized more than ever before. Prior to the Great War everyone felt secure, but today they are haunted by fear. They were in the grip of such tremendous world forces that they were unable to steer their own course for fear of the consequences, stated Dr. Gordon. There was a paralyzing sense of inability to deal with the situation prevalent, was the opinion of the speaker. Dr. Gordon felt that the British Empire had a deep desire to substitute this new integration with the integration of good will.

The great ambition of the old world was to get more power into machines in order that they might produce more rapidly. "To-day," said Dr. Gordon, "this was not the idea. The idea was how to get the power released—to get it employed. The problem now was not to produce more rapidly, but what to do with the products after they were produced. This was distinctly a post-war problem, and until it was solved good times could not be expected, said the speaker."

The world was confronted with new political entities; new states had been created since the war; new forms of governments had taken root and started to grow, so that the world was new, not only industrially but also politically. Into this new world the empire, joined with the United States, might move with great strength and advantage to humanity declared Dr. Gordon, amid applause.

Dr. Gordon felt that there were characteristics in the Anglo-American people for the advancement of world conditions, and the accomplishment of peace that could not be found among other people.

Rev. J. H. A. Warr presided as chairman. Rev. E. F. Church introduced Dr. Gordon, and Edward Parsons played the organ prelude. Prior to the address, Mrs. Edward Parsons sang a solo.

MUST FACE NEW TRIAL

Neil Anderson's Acquittal Negativated By Appeal Court

Justices of the Court of Appeal delivered three judgments to-day before formally adjourning for the summer vacation. The judgments of the court were spoken by the Acting Chief Justice Martin. With him on the bench were Mr. Justice McPhillips and Mr. Justice M. A. Macdonald.

With Mr. Justice Macdonald dissenting, the court ruled that the verdict of the jury in the case of Eddie Pile should be set aside on the ground that it could not be supported on the evidence.

A Vancouver retail merchant, at the spring assizes was sentenced to two years in jail for living in part on the earnings of prostitution rising through the fact he had bought a half interest from the landlady in charge in a Victoria brothel.

He appealed on the ground that the income he was deriving from his investment could not be legally considered the earnings of prostitution, any more than the rent paid by a brothel keeper to a landlord or owner of the property.

The appeal court was unanimous in ordering a new trial in the case of Neil Anderson, accused murderer of Judge Lampman, when interviewed by a Victoria Daily Times reporter this morning.

Mr. Anderson is spending a short time in town, and is giving a series of lectures in the Empress Hotel.

"You can do what you want to do if you believe you can do it," that is Mr. Anderson's philosophy, and this motto has been sealed in his brain from a life time in the university of experience and hard knocks.

Once when he was lecturing in England a little girl had jumped up and said:

"Do you mean to say that I would be the Queen of England if I could believe I was the Queen of England?"

"Why, of course," Mr. Anderson replied. "But there is only one sane person in the whole world who really thinks she is the Queen of England."

WHAT YOU ARE

"You are what you think, not what you think you are," the negro author, explained to the newspaper reporter.

Mr. Anderson is forty-seven years old, who is a tall, well-dressed man with a quiet, sincere manner. He has risen from the position of a bell boy and pullman porter to the heights of fame as the first negro playwright to produce a play on Broadway.

He was born in Wichita, Kansas, but his father and mother moved to San Francisco, which has always been his home. He only received four years' schooling, for at the age of eleven he ran away from home.

He wrote his most famous play, "Appearances," when he was a bell boy in a San Francisco hotel. The play had a run of three years in America. On its first appearance on Broadway it only stayed three weeks, but when it made its return at attracted crowds on the great white way for four and one-half months.

Anderson took the play to London, and it had a run of four months in the West End.

The play was based on his own life. Mr. Anderson said, which might be said to be the greatest proof of his contention that all men are equal.

In this instance he told a queer anecdote about race prejudice.

BLACK AND WHITE

He was once talking to a porter in a Chicago station when a lady asked him what time a train left.

"Ten minutes past twelve," the porter said.

The lady then went over to a white man and asked him when the train was leaving.

"Ten minutes past twelve," the white man said.

The porter turned to Mr. Anderson and said, "Now I guess it's O.K. She's got it down in black and white."

Other plays of Mr. Anderson include "The Sign of the Cross," a farce, and "The Prince of Peace," which is still in manuscript form. He has also written a book entitled "Uncommon Sense," which has been endorsed by the famous radio personality, "The Voice of Experience."

Mr. Anderson is a psychologist; but does not narrow himself down to any particular form of psychology. What he is mainly interested in is the application of practical Christianity in every day life, which he believes is possible.

When asked what he thought of Freud, he replied that he had read most of his work, and believed he had done a great deal of good.

"I am not a student of any particular type of psychology. I get my ideas from a great many people," he said.

Mr. Anderson will deliver a lecture to-night on "How to Find a Place in Life." His other talks in the Empress Hotel will be on Wednesday and Thursday evenings. When his subjects will be "Sense That Is Not Common" and "How to Succeed."

PAY LAST TRIBUTE

A large number of sympathizing friends paid their last tribute at the funeral of Miss Mary Holly yesterday afternoon.

Rev. F. W. Weaver officiated, during which the hymn sung was "Peace, Perfect Peace." A delegation from the Daughters of England was present.

The remains were laid at rest in Royal Oak Burial Park. Mrs. M. Porter, president, Mrs. E. Allen, vice-president, Mrs. H. Baker, chaplain, and Mrs. Cavett, past president, of the Daughters of England, officiated at the graveside, where the hymn sung was "Forever With the Lord."

To-morrow afternoon's Wednesday League cricket match will be between the Five C's and Hudson's Bay, at Beacon Hill, at 2:30 o'clock, in the Payne Cup series. The Five C's line-up follows: Smith, Wilkinson, Shrimpton, Griffin, Passmore, Adie, Muncy, Butterworth, Comley, Nixon, Vaughan and Keralake.

Sidewalk Explodes In Intense Heat

Cause of the shock which fractured the sidewalk on Balmoral Road Sunday was disclosed to-day by Alec McDonald, superintendent of works for the city, to have been the heat and expansion of the concrete in the sidewalk.

The path, not made with the new rubber absorption strips which usually move when the slabs of cement expand in excessive heat, gradually buckled a meter box until the pressure was so great it shattered with an explosion, smashing the paving as it broke.

From Porter To Playwright

Garland Anderson, Famous Negro Lecturer, Has Had Dynamic Career

"I don't claim to be a miracle worker. I don't even pretend to be able to help people. My desire is to show people the power that is hidden within them—to make them conscience of themselves," said

So said Garland Anderson, world-famous negro playwright, author and philosopher, when interviewed by a Victoria Daily Times reporter this morning.

Mr. Anderson is spending a short time in town, and is giving a series of lectures in the Empress Hotel.

CLUB MEETING IS PRECEDENT

Victoria and Port Angeles Kiwanians Meet For Lunch in Middle of Straits

History was made on board the Black Ball Ferry Line S.S. Inroquois to-day, when what is believed to be the first international meeting of an international service club in international waters was held by the Victoria and Port Angeles Kiwanis Clubs.

Twenty-five members of each club met at luncheon on board the ferry steamer, joined in community singing and exchanged greetings and words of international goodwill.

Guests at the luncheon were Mayor David Leeming of Victoria and J. P. Copp, lieutenant-governor of Division No. 1 of the Pacific Northwest Kiwanis District, which has the distinction of being the only division in the whole organization with clubs on both sides of the border.

The Victoria party sailed on the Inroquois at 9:15 o'clock this morning, arriving in Port Angeles shortly after 11 o'clock.

In the United States city they were met by the local clubmen, who joined them on the vessel. The luncheon was held on board during the trip from Port Angeles to Victoria, following which the two clubs adjourned to one of the ferry's sitting-rooms for speeches and singing. The Port Angeles club members had forty-five minutes in Victoria, before sailing for home at 2 o'clock.

INTERNATIONAL VALUE

Mayor David Leeming, in addressing the joint meeting, stressed the international significance of so unique an event. He referred especially to the value of Kiwanis in promoting international goodwill, stating that world peace would only be a reality when the British Empire and the United States joined together in announcing their common intention of enforcing such peace.

Kiwanis, said Mayor Leeming, along with the other service clubs of the world, are working to bring about peace towards the promotion of the friendship between the English-speaking races which was essential for the formation of such a policy of peace than any other type of organization.

CLOSE LINK OF CITIES

Victoria and Port Angeles, he said, had a close interest in each other. Victoria was virtually the northern terminus of United States Highway No. 101, and the greater part of all the tourist traffic flowing over that highway came through Port Angeles. Lieut.-Governor Copp gave details of the Pacific northwest district's convention, to be held in Vancouver from August 19 to 21. The last convention in Vancouver was in 1925, when the Harding Memorial in Stanley Park was dedicated, marking the spot where the United States President, Woodrow Wilson, died.

One of the features of this year's convention will be the dedication of the memorial on the last day of the gathering.

The convention will be attended by Harper Ganton, the new secretary; Trafford Taylor of Winnipeg, international trustee, and a host of other prominent Kiwanians.

On the second day of the convention, Kiwanians will be taken by one of the Canadian Pacific Princess ships on a visit to Jarvis Inlet, returning by way of Newcastle Island.

PRESIDENT SPEAKS

F. L. Christman, president of the Port Angeles club, echoed the views of Mayor Leeming on the subject of international co-operation, adding that Port Angeles felt the ups and downs of Victoria as much as it did those of any United States city.

He expressed the hope that his own club could soon be able to arrange for some reciprocal international meeting.

The international luncheon to-day was largely a success, and through the work of A. C. Stickley, Victoria Kiwanian and local Black Ball Ferry agent.

Members of both clubs joined heartily in community singing, with Harry Hay acting as master-of-ceremonies. Musical solos and accompaniment were provided by Ernie Fullerton and Jimmie Haggard, piano-accompaniment experts.

Victor King, Victoria Kiwanian, mystified the Port Angeles club members with his exhibition of "mind reading" by which he gave the telephone numbers of members picked out at random. He had the honesty, however, to put the clock on the table and dispel the cloud of Walker under death, with telephone book, paper and pencil in hand.

The Victoria club members expressed considerable interest in the large number of United States warships of all types at present anchored in Port Angeles, and in the new coast guard flying boat which could be seen in the newly-erected hangar on the spit.

Perfect weather most of the way, despite fog and clouds over Port Angeles, considerably added to the enjoyment of the trip.

Chief Rankin In New Saanich Home

For the information of Saanich residents, Chief of Police Allan Rankin stated to-day he and his family had moved into their new home on Wilkinson Road, near Carey Road, and his telephone number, Colquhoun 98, remains the same.

The chief's home was burned to the ground last week.

The chief expressed his appreciation of the attempt made by workmen and passersby to save his home and made special mention of the fact that the Canadian Airways plane out of Victoria had circled the burning home twice to attract attention to the fire.

BIBLE GAVE RIGHT DIET FOR BEARING CHILDREN

Modern Science Backs Food Advice of Ancient Patriarchs; Adding Some Body-building Aids For Expectant Mothers

By DR. MORRIS FISHER

With all the research and experimentation that has been going on in this modern age, science still has to admit that our ancestors were not very far from wrong in many ideas concerning their health.

For instance, we know now that vitamins A, D and E are essential to successful childbirth. Well, an English medical authority calls attention to a diet recommended in the Old Testament to prevent sterility, or failure to have children, and the foods suggested form an excellent regimen in themselves.

The diet which this physician has found in the Bible includes wheat, barley and meal, parched corn, beans, lentils, oil, butter, honey, sheep, cheese, fatted calves, fatted oxen, and so forth.

The same doctor points out that many cases of failure to bear children, which he has seen in his practice, have been corrected by a suitable improvement of the diet and prescription of glandular and foodstuffs to speed up the chemical changes going on in the body.

It is also important that the expectant mother get a sufficient amount of calcium and phosphorus, so that the baby may have sound bones and teeth. Nature prepares for the child's adequate use of this calcium and phosphorus, through providing the child before birth, during the twelfth week, with its thyroid and parathyroid glands.

The vitamins are important in affecting suitable action of the glands of internal secretion, and the glands of internal secretion are the motor of the human organism. By correct diet, sunshine and exercise, disaster during childbirth may be avoided in many cases.

A deficiency in vitamin C and D in the diet, and a subsequent deficiency of calcium and phosphorus preceding childbirth are reflected in disturbances of the gums, decay of the teeth, muscular weakness, spasmodic cramps in the legs and arms and even mild convulsions.

The substances of the diet which are of greatest importance in the speed-up of the chemical changes which provide iron, copper, calcium and phosphorus together with the vitamins. Those particularly concerned are asparagus, almonds, lean beef, beans, barley, carrots, cheese, the yolks of eggs, green vegetables such as lettuce and spinach, liver, oatmeal, oysters, peas, potatoes, prunes, raisins, walnuts and wheat.

Milk is especially important in providing calcium and suitable proteins and fats. It has been said that the average mother need not eat for two, but, as far as calcium is concerned, she requires much more than the average mother is likely to include in her diet.

DRAMA, ROMANCE IN NEW FEATURE

Clive Brook Star of "Loves of a Dictator" at Dominion

Sophisticated, but serious and intensely dramatic is the highly-flavored romance told in "Loves of a Dictator," the Twentieth Production presented by OB and starring Clive Brook and Madeleine Carroll at the Dominion Theatre to-day.

Fascinating characters, tense situations, clever dialogue hold tightly together a story of an ambitious young man and a beautiful queen. The setting is 18th Century Danish royalty. The story opens after the royal wedding and shows the king trying to get into the bedroom of the queen, whom he has met the day before.

The outraged king beats it to Hamburg to have a good time. Struensee, a doctor, makes an impressive entry. Called to attend the king, incognito, who has passed out after too much wine and women, he wins the young man's favor by bringing him back to life unceremoniously, first dumping him into a tub of cold water and then giving him a stiff lecture.

"Loves of a Dictator" is a picture big in drama and production. All its technical work is splendid. Victor Saville's direction is very fine, and the photography is marvelous. The sets are huge and large crowds are used. The atmosphere of the Danish court of the 18th Century is perfect.

The cast has been very cleverly chosen. Clive Brook, as the dictator, does an authoritative bit of acting and excites a tremendous heart appeal. Also being shown as the second picture is "The Great Hotel Murder," showing Edmund Lowe.

"MEXICANO" NEW DANCE CRAZE

Ballroom dancing will be enriched by the introduction of a brand new and different dance, when "In Caliente," the latest First National screen musical is given its premiere at the Capitol Theatre to-morrow.

The dance, for which the lyrics and music were written by Mort Dixon and Allie Wrubel, is known as the "Mexicano."

"Like the 'Carica' the 'Conti-mental' and other popular dances which had their origin in screen productions, the "Mexicano" is built around a special song.

The "Mexicano" is rather a strange rhythmic cross between a waltz and a rumba. The steps for the production, with an eye to simplification for ballroom use, were created by Busby Berkeley, dance director for the picture.

There are several other beautiful dance numbers in the picture, as well as some specialties by The DeMarcos, famous team of ballroom dancers.

"In Caliente" is First National's latest musical spectacle, combining romance, comedy and drama. There is an all star cast which includes Dolores Del Rio, Pat O'Brien, Leo Carrillo, Edward Everett Horton, Glenda Farrell, Phil Regan, Dorothy Dare, Winifred Shaw, The De Marcos and The Canova Family.

Lloyd Bacon directed the picture from the screen play by Jerry Wald and Julius Epstein, based on the story by Ralph Block and Warren Duff.

It is not unusual for feminine screen players to purchase a particularly fetching gown or hat from the studio wardrobe department after they have worn it in a certain picture, but it is far from ordinary to have someone take a flannel nightgown for their own use.

That, however, is what happened during the making of the Fox film, "Hell in the Heavens," which is being shown at the Columbia Theatre, when Herbert Mundin, who plays an entire scene wearing a full-length grey flannel nightgown, not only offered to buy the old-fashioned article, but threatened to steal it unless a legitimate purchase was effected.

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—Why does no one ever give any praise to step-fathers? All that they do is taken for granted. No one ever gives them any thanks or appreciation, not even their wives. They are not noticed except on pay day when they bring home their money and turn it over to feed another man's children. I was fifteen years old when my father died. Four years later my mother married again. There were still a couple of young children to raise and an invalid sister to be taken care of. My stepfather took over another man's burden like the good sport he was. Never complained. It was just like Heaven to have a home again after being knocked around the world for four years. He has been dead for five years now, but there is not a day that goes by that I do not think about him with love and gratitude. Thank God for stepfathers. B. H.

Answer: I am glad to print this tribute to a Forgotten Man who has never received his just meed of praise. For if there is a heaven in the world, it is surely the good stepfather.

It is a difficult job, one fitted only for heroes and martyrs, to be a step-parent of either sex. But it has always seemed to me that the stepfather had a harder lot and one that called for more self-sacrifice and self-abnegation than the stepmother. For the woman who marries a widower with a bunch of olive branches at least improves her condition to the extent of getting a home and a husband to support her, whereas the stepfather simply takes himself into slavery to the woman he marries and her children. Also in any dispute between the in-laws and the children the stepmother is pretty sure to have the sympathy and support of her husband, while, on the contrary, the mother is certain to side with the children against the stepfather and resent his every effort to control them.

About the most superlative proof of love that any human being is capable of giving is exemplified in a man's marrying a widow with children. For he knows that he is letting himself in for every one of the drawbacks of family life, with few, if any, of the amelioration. He knows that he will always run a poor second to the children in his wife's affections, and while he might not resent that if they were his own children, it takes a superman not to be jealous of rivals who are a perpetual reminder of his father to his wife.

He knows that the children for whom he is making the sacrifice of his life will regard him with ill-will and suspicion, that they will take all that he gives without gratitude or appreciation, and that it will take the work of years and the finesse of a diplomat even to make friends of them.

And he knows, unless he is a very rich man, that in marrying a widow with children he is taking on his shoulders a financial burden that will keep his nose to the grindstone for many and many a year. He will have to work harder and do without many of the things that he wants and would enjoy, because there are children to be educated and fed and clothed, doctors' bills to be paid, college expenses, pretty dresses for the girls, trips, cars—all of the million things that the young people of today demand. And he will not have the pride of fatherhood, the love of his flesh and blood that would make the doing of all this a joy if done for his own children.

Yet thousands of men do love women well enough to make this great sacrifice for them. They take another man's children and make for them a home. They educate them. They make them a place in the world. They bear with them patiently through their adolescence. They give them tenderness and affection. And such are of the Kingdom of Heaven. Surely no man ever does a nobler and finer deed than he who is a father to the fatherless. We may all well do reverence to those stepfathers who deserve to wear upon their breasts a medal of honor and of distinguished service.

I wish their stepchildren appreciated them often, and especially I wish that their wives appreciated them more.

DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR MISS DIX—My boy friend and I are both working and making about the same salary. Do you think it wrong for me to suggest going Dutch treat to him when we go out together? We are only friends and I'd like to pay my part of a treat, but he becomes furious if I even mention it. N. W.

Answer: It is a very sensible arrangement and one that is followed by many young couples in these days of depression when a girl is often making a better salary than the boy is. But if your friend objects to it, that settles the matter as far as he is concerned. Many boys have a foolish pride that makes them feel inferior if a girl pays her score.

DOROTHY DIX.

Uncle Wiggily and the Little Robin

By HOWARD R. GARIS

Every morning before they hopped out to play, Baby Buntie and the other rabbit children in Uncle Wiggily's household went to Nurse Jane's kitchen to look at the box where the robin egg was being kept. The egg was kept warm so the little bird inside would hatch and come to life. It was out yet, Nurse Jane? Buntie or some of the other rabbit children would ask. Nurse Jane would go close to the box, lean over it and listen for any peeping-sounds for the noise of the egg shell being broken by the beak of the little bird inside. She heard no sounds, she said, the egg was not hatched yet. Come in again to-morrow.

So each day Buntie and the others asked about the egg, and each day Nurse Jane would listen for any peeping or chirping sounds. But for a week or more none was heard.

Even Uncle Wiggily went to the kitchen each day to ask about the robin's egg. He had found it in the woods and, seeing no nest from which it had fallen and in which he might put it back, he brought the egg home to the warm kitchen.

WIGGILY'S QUERY

"Any little robin yet, Nurse Jane?" the rabbit gentlemen would ask, twinkling their pink nose before they went adventuring. "It hasn't hatched yet," the muskrat lady housekeeper would answer. "I'll stop in to-morrow," Mr. Longears would say, and off he would hop, over the fields and through the woods.

But at last one morning, when Nurse Jane and Mrs. Longears had given the rabbit children their breakfast and they were about to hop out to play, the muskrat lady, near the hot water boiler, suddenly called out: "Hark!"

"What's the matter?" asked the lady rabbit.

"Listen," said Nurse Jane. "Don't you hear a pipping, peeping sound near the boiler?"

"Maybe the boiler's leaking," said Buster, a funny rabbit boy.

"Oh, my goodness! Call your father!" said Mrs. Longears.

"The boiler isn't leaking," said Nurse Jane. "The pipping, peeping sounds must come from the baby robin. I think it is hatched and has picked its way out of the egg shell. I'll look."

Carefully taking the covering of soft cloth and fluffy cotton off the box, Nurse Jane looked within. "Hark!"

"Oh, how cute! Come and look, all of you!"

BABY ROBIN

They all looked and there, on the cotton in the box, with broken bits of blue egg shell around it, was the newly hatched baby robin.

"Oh, how wonderful!" said Baby Buntie and all the other rabbit children. "Jingle asked: 'May I hold it?'"

"Call your father," the old Butler, who must come and see what has happened. It's his robin, he brought the egg home to hatch. Call him!"

When Uncle Wiggily came and looked at the little newly hatched robin he was very happy. Everything had happened just as he hoped it would. He had helped in bringing the little bird to life. The robin chirped and chirped and fluttered in the nest box.

"But what makes it open its mouth so wide?" said Jingle. "Why does it keep opening its mouth so wide, Daddy?"

"Because it is hungry," said Mr. Longears. "As soon as baby robins come out of the egg they are hungry and open their mouths to be fed. I must feed this robin. Where's the shovel, Nurse Jane?"

"What are you going to do, Wiggily?" asked his wife.

"You'll see," he answered with a laugh. And if the cow will blow one of her horns to tell the Boy Scouts it's time for supper, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and Mother Robin.

Bringing general cargo and passengers from the United Kingdom, the Pacific liner docked at Ogdin Point this morning at 6:15 o'clock. She will proceed to Vancouver later in the day.

From Europe by way of California ports, where she picked up a large party of tourists, the Ma. Europa of the Danish East Asiatic Line docked at Ogdin Point at 1:30 o'clock this morning. She will remain here all to-day, continuing to Vancouver late in the evening.

Passengers bound for Japan on the Nippon Yusen Kaisha Ma. Heian Maru next Saturday will include His Excellency T. Matsumura, Japanese ambassador to Great Britain; Madame Matsumura and Miss T. Tokugawa, daughter of the Japanese minister in Ottawa.

Bound for northern B.C. and Alaska waters, the 210-foot barkentine yacht Intrepid, most luxurious private vessel ever to put in here, left Esquimalt harbor yesterday afternoon shortly before 4 o'clock under her auxiliary power.

ARCTIC TRADER IS IN DISTRESS

Auxiliary Schooner Charles Edwards Put in at Alert Bay With Open Seams

Alert Bay, B.C., July 16.—The auxiliary schooner, Charles Edwards, bound from Vancouver for Arctic trading, has put in here under distress of weather, it is understood.

The ship left Vancouver recently for the Western Arctic with a full cargo of trade goods and proceeded through the Straits of Juan de Fuca. Off Cape Flattery her seams opened in heavy weather, flooding the engine-room and putting the engines out of commission. The hand pumps were kept going to keep afloat and off Cape Scott the vessel nearly foundered.

Rounding Inlet, Cape the leak was stopped and Harry Bay was made first, after which the boat proceeded here.

It is understood the cargo will be transferred at Vancouver to another vessel and an effort made to get into the Western Arctic before the ice closes in on Point Barrow for the season.

Two Hurt As Launch Burns

Vernon, B.C., July 16.—Capt. J. G. Dunwaters, the well-known "Laird of Plastry," and Angus Gray are in the Jubilee Hospital here recovering from a severe burning which they received Sunday when Capt. Dunwaters' launch was destroyed by fire.

The two men were in the boat-house seeking to start the launch when it suddenly backfired and burst into flames.

The launch became a complete loss and the boat-house was also destroyed. Seeking to escape from the flames, Capt. Dunwaters sustained severe burning of the face, while Mr. Gray's injuries were largely on his arms.

Parachutist Saves Falling Aviator

Moscow, July 15.—A jumper whose parachute was torn away in midair was saved by a fellow parachutist in a thrilling episode at the Moscow military airfield to-day.

Soldier Nookoff caught on the stabilizer of an airplane after leaping from the wing, lost his chute and hurtled down. In midair he struck another parachutist, Soldier Krasitski, and clutched him desperately.

They fell rapidly, until 800 feet above the earth Nookoff finally found the cord of Krasitski's reserve chute and opened it in time to check their fall. Both landed safely.

Crossing Ocean In "Dream Ship"

Former C.P.R. Commander on Pacific in 45-foot Brigantine

Vancouver, July 16.—Capt. E. F. Green, R.N.R., retired commander of the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Russia, accompanied by his eighteen-year-old son and a Chinese cook and sailor are making a voyage on their projected crossing of the Pacific in Capt. Green's "dream ship," the Romance, a forty-five-foot brigantine with auxiliary power, Capt. W. T. Kinley, R.N.R., commander of the Empress of Russia, reported here yesterday when he brought his big white command in from the far east.

The former Canadian Pacific captain, who left Hongkong seven weeks ago for Vancouver, where his wife and daughter are awaiting him, is now half way toward his goal.

With his son and a faithful Chinese who is able to cook and hold the little craft on her course, Capt. Green is making good headway against the Pacific swells, Capt. Kinley, who saw Capt. Green in Yokohama, said.

Capt. Green, while still in C.P.R. service and nearing the pension age, carried out the idea of building a sailing ship in which to spend his remaining years.

Accordingly the Romance was built at Hongkong. Made of teak and fitted with beautiful teak, the little ship fulfilled Capt. Green's fondest dream.

After sailing her back here he plans to put her in service for fishing expeditions and other recreational jaunts up and down the Coast.

"A stout little ship which can sail close to a gale and will take us anywhere," he says. "Green described the Romance to Capt. Kinley."

SS. IXION HERE YESTERDAY

After an uneventful voyage, with fog in the later stages, the Blue Funnel Line S.S. Ixion, Captain James Nelson, docked here at 9:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon from China and Japan ports. She sailed at 8 o'clock in the evening for Vancouver.

The Ixion had a new chief engineer on this trip, in the person of W. Kneale.

The steamer landed about fifty tons of cattle feed cake here out of a general cargo of 1,000 tons. She carried a total of seventy-four Chinese immigrants, sixteen of whom landed here, and no European passengers.

One of the remaining Chinese will land in Seattle, and the rest disembarked in Vancouver when the Ixion reached there late yesterday.

LADNER LINE IS SUSPENDED

Vancouver, July 16.—The board of railway commissioners for Canada today ruled that Vancouver, Victoria and Eastern Railway and Navigation Co., a subsidiary of Great Northern Railway, may suspend regular service on the line between Victoria and Ladner, B.C., after a period of eighteen months may abandon the line if industries now closed do not reopen.

The decision was reached following an agreement between interested parties who laid their case before the board through F. Drew Pratt for the railway and David Whitehead for Delta Municipality.

The company stated there is no business on the line at present. The opponents to the application argued that two industries now closed may reopen. They are Ladner Lumber Co. and Bender, Canada.
